ORCHIDS IN TOWN

Colorful species, all home-grown, bloomed at the First National Bank in San Rafael today as Marin Orchid Society presented its first annual orchid show. Mrs. Louis Dallara of Fairfax holds a typical exhibit, a cattleya species grown by Evelyn Malone of San Rafael. Several hundred persons were expected to view the one-day show which was scheduled to close at 5 p.m. (Independent-Journal photo.)

Nikita Again Insists U.N. Leave Congo

Lambastes Dag As 'Assassin' In World Message

MOSCOW (UPI) —Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev bombarded world leaders with letters today denouncing United Nations Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold as the "chief assassin" of former Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba, and raising again Soviet demands on the Congo which were defeated in the Security Council this week.

The apparently identical 12-page letters from Khrushchev accused the West of trying to revive Theodore Roosevelt's "big stick" policy and insisted that U.N. forces in the Congo be pulled out.

SUPPORTS GIZENGA

Khrushchev called again for support for the pro-Lumumba Congo government of Antoine Gizenga in Oriental Province. He bitterly attacked Hammarskjold on grounds he "pursued a policy of base treachery" toward the Congolese people.

The Soviet Foreign Ministry reported the letter had been sent to leaders in Africa, Asia, Latin America and Europe.

There was no mention of any letter to President Kennedy.

NO RIGHT TO POST

"To put it bluntly, it was in essence Hammarskjold who murdered Lumumba," Khruchchev wrote. "Whoever held the knife or revolver is after all not the sole murdered. The chief assassin is the one who handed him the weapon.

"Such an individual has no right to hold a leading post in the United Nations. We cannot reconcile ourselves to the fact that the secretary general has sullied himself by a foul murder."

DEATH CAR — A steel fence pipe impaled the driver of this car early today in San Rafael.

Driver Killed As Steel Pipe Rips Windshield

Son, Passenger Safe In San Rafael Crash

A San Bruno man, on his way to a day of fishing with his 10-year-old son, died in San Rafael General Hospital this morning after being impaled on a 40-foot length of steel pipe when his car ran off the highway at the Highway 101 overpass in San Rafael.

Edward Jones Harrell, 39, glass department manager for W. P. Fuller Paint Co. in San Francisco, his son, Mark, and a friend, Ted R. Johnson, 50, of Salt Lake City, left San Bruno early this morning en route to Harrell's boat which is berthed in San Rafael.

According to California Highway Patrolmen Richard J. DeMarco and Vincent Weimer, who investigated the accident, Harrell apparently went to sleep just before the Irwin Street turnoff at the foot of the ramp. The northbound car tore up 170 feet of fence and struck another car before coming to a halt on the overpass. The accident happened at 6:15 a.m.

A 40-foot length of pipe from the top rail of the fence passed through the windshield, piercing Harrell's right forearm and chest, and went through both seats and the automobile's gasoline tank.

Both passengers were uninjured.

Johnson, a business associate and long-time friend of Harrell's, said he had not seen his friend for some time and the two of them "sat up all night" in San Bruno talking over old times. Johnson was asleep when the car struck the fence, waking up in time to grab the steering wheel and keep the vehicle on the road.

A San Rafael police car driven by Officers Thomas Stephenson and Leo Schwab were less than a block away at the time of the accident. They notified the highway patrol and the San Rafael Fire Department.

Arriving at the scene almost immediately was Rafael G. Dufficy, county physician, who accompanied Harrell to the hospital and pronounced him dead within about 20 minutes. DeMarco said Harrell was alive but not conscious while in the car.

Firemen sawed off the pipe on both sides of Harrell's body in order to extricate him from the car. Officers said Harrell's

Pedestrian 'Hits' CHP Patrol Car

A Mill Valley Army sergeant was charged with being drunk on the freeway last night after he walked into the side of a speeding California Highway Patrol car on Highway 101.

Officer Richard J. DeMarco, driver of the car, said Howard Freeman Brown, 29, walked across the highway just south of the Corte Madera overpass and struck the right rear fender of the car.

DeMarco said he swerved in an attempt to miss the man, and thought he had avoided hitting him until he felt the impact on the rear of the car. DeMarco was treated at San Rafael for minor injuries to his head and leg.

Two witnesses, Penny Conti, 21, of 337 C Street in San Rafael, and V. C. Weimer of 696 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, said Brown was dressed in dark clothing and almost impossible to see. The patrol car, they said, drove onto the divider strip in an attempt to miss him.

Brown told officers he had parked his car on the shoulder of the highway because he was "too drunk" to drive.

Deputy Clerk Quits In Row With Jones

By WAT TAKESHITA

A deputy county clerk, who has worked there for six years, is resigning after an apparent clash with County Clerk George S. Jones, the Independent-Journal learned today.

The deputy clerk is D. T. (Trent) Cleveland, father of four, who began working for the county in January of 1955. Cleveland declared he plans to appear before the County Board of Supervisors Monday morning because Jones dismissed him immediately when he gave his boss two weeks' notice. Cleveland contends he is entitled to two more weeks of pay.

County Clerk Jones, on the other hand, said his deputies need not give him any notice.

"He (Cleveland) said he would quit in two weeks," Jones explained. "I told him there is no need for two weeks notice; you can quit now."

This was on Thursday. On Friday, Cleveland said he found a note on his desk a notation that he would be paid off as of that date and immediately released. He charges the county clerk with releasing him "summarily" and will appeal to the supervisors for two weeks pay.

Cleveland contends that Jones admonished him for not working straight through until past 1 a.m. Wednesday while he waited for a jury to reach a verdict. Cleveland said he typed until about 10 p.m. that night and was resting because he was tired.

The county clerk said his deputy is resigning, probably because "he has been dissatisfied for some time."

COULD BE WAY TO GET MORE PARKING SPACES

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — If all the cars in the nine Bay Area counties got out on the road at the same time, each of the nearly 1½ million cars would have 239 feet of space to itself on primary and secondary arteries.

If the same thing occurred in Los Angeles County, the distance would be only 78 feet.

The San Francisco Bay Area Council made the computation by way of emphasizing the vehicular population. The number jumped 60 per cent from 1950 to 1960.

Alameda County's 377,892 topped all nine counties in registration for 1960. Santa Clara was next with 278,739 and San Francisco third with 267,236. San Mateo was fourth with 196,311.

Kennedy Lauds Effort Toward Integration

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President John F. Kennedy strongly endorsed today efforts of educators, parents and other citizens who are trying to carry out court-ordered integration of New Orleans public schools in the face of violent opposition.

He praised them for "quiet intelligence and true courage" and firmly declared: "This is no time for schools to close for any reason, and certainly no time for schools to be closed in the name of racial discrimination."

Kennedy's telegraphed statement to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission's third annual conference on schools in transition at Williamsburg, Va., was an obvious follow-up to his recent pledge to "use the moral authority" of the presidency in school desegregation disputes.

It also came on the heels of the Justice Department filing a civil contempt action to compel the state of Louisiana to release $350,000 in federal funds withheld from the New Orleans school board since September.

The civil contempt action was filed against Shelby M. Jackson, state superintendent of public education.

Arms Budget Increase Held On The Way

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President John F. Kennedy conferred today with Sen. Richard B. Russell on the administration's new defense policies which reportedly will call for a 2.1-billion-dollar increase in the present defense budget.

The Georgia Democrat, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said afterwards, "I don't think it would be possible, of course, to increase the strength of our defenses without an increase in spending."

Russell declined to say whether the group discussed a possible increase in the 41.8-billion-dollar defense budget proposed by former President Eisenhower for the fiscal year which begins July 1.

The defense recommendations of Secretary Robert S. McNamara are to be submitted to Kennedy in final form by March 1. The new plan is said to call for speeding missile production, increasing the number of jet bombers on a 15-minute alert, and boosting the size of conventional forces for "brushfire" wars. This would add an estimated 2.1 billion dollars to the budget.

Deputies Named In Council Race

The two incumbent San Rafael city councilmen, Louis H. (Bud) Baar and David Menary Jr., had verification deputies appointed for circulating nomination petitions yesterday.

Both men have announced their intentions to run for a second term in the April 10 municipal election. Contractor Joseph R. Filippo was the first candidate to file his nomination petition for city council on the opening of the nomination period yesterday.

Woman Believed Bridge Victim; Vet Restrained

A Korean War veteran was forcibly restrained from jumping off the Golden Gate Bridge early this morning about four hours after the wife of a prominent Los Altos doctor apparently plunged over the rail to her death.

Grover Clay, 32, a former GI wounded in Korea who said he was despondent over a recent divorce, was rescued by California Highway Patrolman Blair Barclay, who grabbed his arm as he reached for a cigarette while standing on the outside of the bridge rail.

Coast Guardsmen were searching today for the body of Mrs. Else Hedwig Cavelti, 45, who presumably jumped from the bridge around 3 a.m. Her identity was learned from identification papers found on the seat of her Jaguar sedan which was parked on the bridge with its engine running and lights on.

A motorist crossing the bridge moments after she had stopped her car reported the event after turning off the car ignition and searching the vicinity of the car. Gordon Phillips of 36 Crescent Drive, Sausalito, told officers he saw the car slow down and stop but did not see the woman jump.

A purse containing $10, an umbrella and a pair of eye glasses were found on the car seat. Her husband, who was identified as Dr. P. A. Cavelti of Los Altos, was notified. He told officers he knew of no reason why his wife should take her life.

There have been 203 known suicides off the bridge.

At 7:30 a.m. Clay jumped from a taxicab about midspan on the bridge and vaulted to the rail onto the outer girder.

Officer Barclay arrived almost immediately after being notified via radio of a "crazy-acting fare" by San Francisco cab driver Bruno Pasquini. Clay had hailed the cab in the city, Pasquini said.

Belgium Breaks Off With U.A.R.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Belgium broke off diplomatic relations with the United Arab Republic today because of mob attacks on the Belgian Embassy in Cairo last week.

Pro-Lumumba Soldiers Capture Key City, Outside Help Hinted

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — Pro-Lumumba troops bouyed by the bloodless capture of the capital of Kasai Province today fanned out through the bush country in an apparent attempt to cut off the rival army of Joseph Mobutu from its capital of Leopoldville.

The precision and speed with which the supporters of slain ex-premier Patrice Lumumba moved out from their Stanleyville stronghold in Oriental Province indicated outside support. There was speculation communist Czech or United Arab Republic officers were helping them.

The Lumumba troop commander technically is Gen. Victor Lundula who was a medical corps sergeant-major before Lumumba elevated him last summer.

Reliable sources said a column from Stanleyville seized Ikela in Equator Province, the home territory of Gen. Mobutu who has concentrated his forces at Bumba, 135 miles north of Ikela.

The advancing column split at Ikela, according to dispatches, and one fork headed for Boende on the road to the equatorial provincial capital of Coquilhatville. The other branched out for the north Kasai town of Lomela.

Strength of the columns was not known, but some 300 Lumumba men took the Kasai capital of Luluabourg yesterday without firing a shot. The 80-man garrison there surrendered.

New Congolese Premier Joseph Ileo gave the U.N. command until noon today to get the Lumumbists out of Luluabourg, or he said he would send troops to do the job. But the U.N. command did not take the ultimatum seriously.

No troops were sent. The deadline passed unnoticed.

The Lumumbists under the regime of Soviet-backed Antoine Gizenga in Stanleyville, Luluabourg and Bukavi, capital of Kivu Province.

Leopoldville, the capital of Leopoldville Province as well as the Congo national capital, is held by Ileo and troops supporting Mobutu. They also still hold Coquilhatville. Katanga Province is ruled by anti-Lumumbist President Moise Tshombe.

Barbara Forsham's Troth To Tom Cheetham Revealed

Dr. and Mrs. Peter H. Forsham of Mill Valley announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Forsham, to Thomas G. Cheetham of San Rafael.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Tamalpais high school and attended Pacific University at Forest Grove, Ore., where she was a member of Kappa Delta sorority. She has two sisters, Betsy and Ann Forsham and her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John S. Forsham of Mill Valley and Mr. and Mrs. G. Stewart Campbell of Wilmot, N. H.

Thomas is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Cheetham of San Rafael. He has three brothers, Paul, Glenn and James Cheetham also of San Rafael.

The prospective bridegroom is a graduate of Marin Catholic High School and the College of Marin, where he was a yell leader and a member of Quindeks men's service club. He is employed as a clerk at the post office in San Rafael.

The couple plans a fall wedding.

Tandems To Hold Dinner, Program

"You don't have to have a green thumb" is the subject of the talk to be given by Scott and Claire Tilden, San Rafael landscape architects, for the meeting of "Tandems," young married couples club of the Mill Valley Community Church on March 3.

The program will follow a 7 p.m. pot luck dinner in the parish hall under the general chairmanship of Mr. and Mrs. Don Porter.

MARIN'S SOCIAL WHIRL

Patricia James Will Be Honored At Tea

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

Mrs. Balfour James of Ross is giving a tea to introduce her daughter, Patricia Ann (Pat) James a week from today at the old and charming Century Club in San Francisco. Mrs. James has invited about 150 guests, many of them her long time friends, who have never met Pat. A number of young people are included, of course.

Assisting Pat will be girls she has known since she was small, Peggy Noyes, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Chester Noyes, Joanie Levensaler, daughter of the James Levensalers, Marian Polland, whose parents are Dr. and Mrs. W. Scott Polland and Barbie Reichmuth, daughter of the John Reichmuths.

Pouring will be Mesdames Gibbons Allen, Samuel D. Archibald, Frank Baumgarten, James L. Cockburn Jr., Albert Daniels, Adolphus Graupner, Barrett G. Hindes, Allen Hinman, Robert Hobart, Clifford Lawrence, Charles Murray, John Reichmuth, Russell G. Smith, William Henry Smith Jr. and James O. Wilhite.

The club will be decorated by Mrs. Calvin Paige of Larkspur, a long time friend who is noted for her exquisite flower arrangements.

Pat, who attended Katherine Branson School, now goes to Redwood High School. She will graduate in June.

WHEN MEL and Rusty Duncan moved into their new home on Oak Avenue, San Anselmo, early last November they were given a grand housewarming by a group of their close friends. It didn't matter that the self-invited guests had to sit on packing cases and dine at improvised tables. "It was simply terrific," Rusty said.

Now that the Duncans are well settled in the house, they are entertaining those who came to the housewarming, on Saturday night, March 11. The invitations, in verse, begin: "Oh come to us and with us dine. And do not bring the food and wine. When last you came we were your guest, of any party, t'was the best. So may we show appreciation by setting forth a slight collation?"

A. P.S. gives this information "Parking on our hillside lot, is what we too much aint's got. So would you please consolidate before you reach our entry gate?"

Back for the return party will be Dr. and Mrs. Earle Young, Messrs. and Mesdames Edward Vest, Jack Cooper, Harold McCoy, Louis Moretti, John Dowling, Milton Gabbs, Charles Collins, Paul Spengler, Albert Wilson, Roland Wilson and Mrs. Grace Graham. The Duncans are giving a series of dinners so all their friends can see the home of which they are so proud.

A DINNER PARTY will be given a week from tonight by Dr. and Mrs. Earle Young. They'll entertain 24 guests at their home in Ross. On Friday, March 10, Dorothy Young and Mrs. J. Benton Tulley will give a bridge luncheon at Peacock Gap club.

AT THEIR HOME IN ROSS the John De Marias are hosting a dinner a week from tonight. Their guests will be Messrs. and Mesdames Gus Niederholze., Mert Hipsley, John Merryman, Mrs. William H. Price and Bruno Pedretti, the latter of San Francisco.

NEW RESIDENTS of Ross will be the John Littles. He is the provost at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo and in his new position will be chief administrator at the seminary. Originally from New York, he has been for many years with Foote, Cone and Belding, an advertising agency in San Francisco.

The Littles have bought the Huntley Bennett home. The Bennetts are moving in mid-March to Minnesota. Huntley has been made manager of the Minneapolis office of Time Magazine and he and Alice have bought a beautiful home in the suburbs of Minneapolis. He has been back in Ross only briefly and leaves tomorrow for Minnesota. Therefore many parties planned for the popular couple had to be cancelled.

FRIENDLY INSULTS Mrs. Joseph (Dorothy) Arons calls the clever caricatures she makes of her guests and these were in the place card holders at the dinner she and Dr. Arons gave at their San Rafael home last night. Guests included Doctors and Mesdames T. Scott Strathairn, W. George Magladry, Calvin Plumbhof, Robert Mills, Ernest Denicke, Herbert Lee, Warren Bostick, Dr. James Dawson and Mrs. Mary Jane Langlais, also the William McDevitts.

A FAREWELL COCKTAIL party and dinner were hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Polk of Mill Valley Tuesday night for Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Peterson, 25-year residents of Mill Valley, who leave by car tomorrow with their four children to make their home on a ranch in Minnesota.

Other guests at the Polks' party were Messrs. and Mesdames Harold Hayes, Virgil Caron and Jack Abernathy.

A VACATION IN MEXICO will be enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schultz of Mill Valley who left Wednesday to drive down the coast to Los Angeles and will fly to Guadalajara. They will fly to Puerto Vallarta to meet friends. After a three weeks vacation they will leave for home.

TO GREET OLD FRIENDS, June Shaw Haseltine entertained at a cocktail party last night at her apartment in San Francisco where she is spending the winter. She has her home in Ross. June is going south to spend the month of March in Phoenix, Ariz., where her daughter, Mrs. Robert Hutchinson III (Juneva), her husband and children live.

SKIING IN AUSTRIA was one of the highlights of the European trip of Mr. and Mrs. Preston A. Jones of San Rafael who returned home last week. They left for Europe on Jan. 12, flying to London and then went to Copenhagen and to Zurich, Switzerland. Friends there loaned them their Mercedes Benz in which they drove to Austria. They stayed at the delightful town of Kitzubhli and then went to Venice, Rome, the French Riviera, Monte Carlo, Madrid and Lisbon. They flew from Portugal to New York but did not spend much time there as "It looked like more snow there than we had seen in Switzerland."

Mrs. Jones' mother, Mrs. E. G. Girbin of Seattle, Wash., stayed with the two Jones youngsters, Daren, 6, and Diane, 13, while their parents were away. She left Wednesday for Palm Springs.

HOUSEGUEST of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Friar of San Rafael last weekend was his brother, Lawrence Friar of Rochester, N.Y., who flew out on business for the Du Pont Co.

HONORING GEORGE, as their invitations indicated, the Ted Griffingers entertained at a party at their Kent Woodlands home on Washington's Birthday, which many San Francisco friends attended.

A TOUR OF EUROPE is being eagerly anticipated by the Thomas Prings of San Anselmo who are leaving home early in March. They are flying to New York for a few days of sight seeing and show going, then will sail on the Queen Elizabeth to Cherbourg, France. Here they will begin a tour through France, Spain, Italy, San Marino, Switzerland, Liechenstein, Austria, Germany, Holland, Belgium and England. After a week in London, they will fly the polar route to San Francisco returning the latter part of May.

AS HAS BEEN HER CUSTOM for many years Camilla (Mrs. John) Wolfe is in Los Angeles to present a program with Stan Noonan, at the Biltmore. She is also visiting with many friends.

On the hostess committee for San Francisco Symphony Foundation wine tasting party Thursday night in the Rotunda of the San Francisco Museum were Mrs. Edwin Sinclair of Belvedere and Mrs. Gregory F. Sheehan of Greenbrae.

NEWLYWEDS ARE FETED AT RECEPTION

The newly married Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ralston (Melanie Louise Shanklin) were honored at a reception given recently by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Shanklin of San Rafael.

Camellias and daphne were combined with white wedding bells and white streamers in room decoration.

The young couple was married in Reno, Nevada, on Jan. 23. The bride has two sisters, Linda and Donna Shanklin.

The new benedict, an airman second class, is stationed at Hamilton Field Air Base. He and his bride are residing in Petaluma. The senior Mr. and Mrs. Ralston live in Hutchinson, Kans.

St. Hilary's Guild Will Honor Sister

A reception honoring Sister Mary Monica, mother-general of the Holy Faith Order, is being planned by the St. Hilary's Guild. The reception will be held at the San Francisco Yacht Club in March.

Sister Mary Monica will be in Marin County to visit St. Hilary's Parish where her nuns will be teaching following completion of the St. Hilary's School. She has come directly from Australia where she had taken a group of nuns to start a school. The mother house of the Holy Faith Order is in Dublin, Ireland.

Mrs. L. R. Peterson is general chairman of the reception.

Mrs. Henry Sherry Goes To Washington

Mrs. Henry Sherry of San Anselmo leaves by train on Tuesday for Washington, D.C., to attend the ninth annual Republican Women's Conference. She is women's vice chairman of the Marin County Republican Central Committee. On March 3, Mrs. Sherry will attend the tea Senator and Mrs. Thomas Kuchel are giving and the reception that evening for wives of the Republican members of Congress.

Elbows Show Wear

Elbows of long-sleeved wool dresses usually are the first to show wear. Reinforce weak spots inside the elbow with a piece of lightweight fabric of the same color.

Mrs. Newton Married To Palo Altan

Mrs. Patricia Newton of Mill Valley became the bride of John S. Dearborn of Palo Alto on Feb. 17 at the San Francisco City Hall. The double ring rites were performed by Judge F. R. Lazarus.

The bride wore a brown tailored wool suit and a corsage of violets.

A reception is planned on March 19 at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Funk of Lafayette.

The new Mrs. Dearborn was graduated from Annahead High School in Berkeley and attended the University of Colorado two years. She is employed at the same importing company in San Francisco where her husband works. She has a two-year-old son, Matthew, by a previous marriage.

Dearborn, who is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dearborn of Palo Alto, was graduated from high school in San Jose and attended Stanford University three and a half years. He plans to complete work on a degree in economics next December.

Until they move to Palo Alto in June when the bridegroom re-enters Stanford University, the newlyweds will live in Mill Valley.

Benefit Planned At New Restaurant

Sunny Hills Junior Auxiliary will sponsor the benefit opening of Dominic's Harbor Restaurant in San Rafael on Saturday, April 8. It will be an evening of cocktails, dinner and music.

Dominic's, built by Herbert Crocker and William McDevitt, is located on the San Rafael canal and will have docking facilities and an outdoor eating area for patrons as well as indoor dining accommodations. The restaurant, in keeping with its locale, will be recorated in the nautical theme.

Mrs. Robert Lashly, general chairman for the benefit opening, has announced as committee chairmen: Mrs. Walter Meinberger, invitations; Mrs. Charles Daniels Jr., reservations, and Mrs. Leland Murphy Jr., entertainment. The opening night will benefit Sunny Hills in San Anselmo.

Sorority Officer

Julia Newell Chambliss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Chambliss of San Anselmo, has been elected marshal of Alpha Lambda chapter of Alpha Xi Delta. Miss Chambliss is a sophomore mathematics major at the University of Oregon, Eugene, Ore.

JILL HART TO BE BRIDE MARCH 17

Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Hart of San Anselmo are announcing the engagement and wedding plans of their daughter, Linda Jill Hart and Gary Frandsen Hall. He is the son of Mrs. Arthur M. Hall of Fairfax and the late Mr. Hall. The wedding will take place on Friday night, March 17, at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo. Rev. Robert Clapham, officiating.

The bride-elect, who is called Jill, is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School. She is the sister of Mrs. David Madsen and Timothy and Sally Jane Hart. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Hart of San Francisco, and D. J. Haile of Santa Cruz.

Gary has two brothers, Arthur M. Hall Jr. and Robert G. Hall and he is the grandson of Mrs. Julia Nissum of San Rafael and S. M. Hall of San Francisco. A graduate of Drake High School, he is a sophomore at University of California at Berkeley.

Engagement was announced at a party given by Mr. and Mrs. Hart.

SOON TO WED. Linda Jill Hart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Hart of San Anselmo who will be married to Gary Franksen Hall on March 17 at the First Presbyterian Church in San Aneslmo.

WEDDING PLANS are being made by Carolyn Ongaro and Leland Finch. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Quin Ongaro of Ross. Her fiance is the son of Mrs. Orrin E. Finch of San Rafael. The nuptials are planned for May 14.

Carol Randolph Sets June Wedding Plans

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Carol Joan Randolph and Keith Paul Kaufman and their wedding plans.

The bride-elect is the only daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Martin and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Marple all of San Rafael. The bride-elect, who attended San Rafael High School was graduted from Ohio Valley General Hospital School of Nursing in Wheeling, W. Va. and is a staff nurse in the surgery of Ohio Valley Hospital. Biddle Named Ambassador To Madrid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President John F. Kennedy yesterday named Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, a veteran of the Roosevelt Administration diplomat, to be U.S. ambassador to Spain.

Biddle, 64, now adjutant general of Pennsylvania, will replace John Davis Lodge, brother of Henry Cabot Lodge, the 1960 Republican vice presidential candidate, in Madrid.

A Democrat, Biddle entered diplomatic service in 1935 during the first Franklin D. Roosevelt administration as minister to Norway. He was named ambassador to Poland two years later. He was interim ambassador to France in 1940, and until 1944 worked with the governments-in-exile of Poland, The Netherland, Norway and Belgium.

Between 1953 and 1955, he was special assistant to the army chief of staff with the rank of major general.

Biddle, a Philadelphia native, now lives in Annville, Pa.

Kennedy appointed Joseph P. McMurray, 48, executive secretary of the New York Better Housing Committee, as chairman of the Home Loan Bank Board. He will succeed Alfred J. Robertson.

The president also announced the resignation of Vice Adm. Walter S. DeLany, deputy administrator for the Mutual Defense Assistant Control Act.

Gov. Brown Signs Jobless Aid Bill

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown today signed a new law which will permit 55,000 unemployed Californians to start extended unemployment benefits beginning next week.

Brown said the added benefits would cost about $2 million a week. They would be paid by California employes.

The first checks will become available the week of March 13 covering the weeks of Feb. 27 and March 6. Checks will be available by the week after that.

The governor sought the law change as an anti-recession measure similar to one proposed by President Kennedy on the national level. The federal bill is in the first stages of congressional debate.

Under present California law, up to 13 weeks of extra unemployment benefits above the regular 26 weeks become available when average state unemployment reaches 6 per cent of the total work force during any specific quarter of the year. This would not make extra benefits available April 1.

The change signed by Brown and authored by Sen. Stanford C. Shaw (D-Ontario) would make the extra benefits available the month following any three consecutive months which average 6 per cent or more unemployment. This will make the benefits available immediately, five weeks before the present law would provide them.

The Shaw bill gained final passage 67-5 yesterday in the Assembly after Assemblyman Jerome Waldie (D-Antioch) scored employer groups for delaying it five weeks in the senate.

Assemblyman Harold K. Levering of Los Angeles, one of five Republicans who voted against the measure, said, "I'm in full sympathy with those who need relief, but we shouldn't make a welfare program out of it and this is the first step in doing that."

But Assemblyman W. A. Hicks (D-Sacramento) replied that "this is an insurance program and the need is here. This goes right through the cash registers of the community and benefits the whole economy."

SACRAMENTO SUMMARY

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE GOVERNOR

Urged Congress to expand the distressed areas aid bill now before it.

Endorsed a legislative proposal that all California teachers major in an academic subject.

Endorsed a bill opening up the records of state-licensed hospitals to the public

THE SENATE

Bills Introduced:

Utilities — Provides PUC may fine public or private highway carriers up to $5,000 rather than cancel operating permit for violations; Williams (R-Porterville).

Salaries — Gives highway patrol pay increases based on length of service. Gives municipal court judges same pay increases as state officers (Miller, D-Martinez)

Maintenance — Transfers school and juvenile hall maintenance authority from county board of education to superintendent of schools (Rodda, D-Sacramento).

Fees—Provides fee for appointed lawyers; O'Sullivan (D-Williams).

Civil Rights — Gives both sexes equal rights in job access; Shaw (D-Ontario).

THE ASSEMBLY

Bills Approved:

Schools — Encourages language courses in elementary schools; Beaver (R-Redlands). Permits school districts to pay travel expenses of those applying for school superintendent jobs; Hegland (D-La Mesa). Requires public schools to conduct flag salute ceremonies each morning; Francis (R-San Mateo).

Jails — Requires city and county health officers to make annual inspection of jails; Kilpatrick (D-Lynwood).

Bills introduced:

Polio — Prohibits students who haven't been immunized against polio from entering public or private schools; De Lotto (D-Fresno).

Hotels—Requires hotels and motels to post their rates and prohibits changing them unless notice is posted once a week for four weeks; Holmes (R-Santa Barbara).

Savings — Authorizes state regulation of use of drawings, gifts and premiums by savings and loan associations opening new branches; Rees (D-Los Angeles).

ALSO OLDEST CRIME

Oldest Human Bones Discovered In Africa

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bones of a man and child who lived among saber-toothed tigers more than 600,000 years ago have been found in east Africa.

Reporting the discovery yesterday, a British anthropologist said they were the oldest human bones ever uncovered. Also, the child's bones represent "the oldest crime ever to come to light," he said.

"Murder most foul," was the description Dr. L. S. B. Leakey gave to the pieces of the child's skull. Skull fracture lines and other evidence convinced the anthropologist that "the child was murdered with a blunt instrument."

Leakey, curator of the Coryndon Museum in Nairobi, Kenya, said the bones were found the past year in the Olduvai Gorge region of Tanganyika, a rich anthropological site.

The discovery means that the 600,000-year-old "Nutcracker man" (zinjanthropus), whose bones Leakey discovered in 1959, is no longer the oldest human on record. "Nutcracker man" turned up in the same area as the new-found bones, but at a different level.

The latest discovery was credited by Leakey to his son, Jonathan, 19. "My son had found part of the jaw of a saber-toothed tiger," the scientist said, "and then, in searching for more tiger bones, we struck humans."

The research was partly financed by the National Geographic Society. Leakey told of the new find—and of still another—at a news conference yesterday preceding a Society lecture.

He was even more enthusiastic over the additional discovery, the skull of "Chellean man," who came along much later than "Nutcracker man," but who represented "the first prehistoric culture ever accepted by science."

Leakey said tools and other artifacts of "Chellean man" were found more than 100 years ago, but bones that would indicate what he looked like remained buried in the sands of time. That is, until last December, when Leakey discovered the first skull.

"We can't say for certain," he said, "but there's a very high probability that Chellean man was the stem from which modern man developed."

As to the earliest evidence of man's inhumanity to man, Leakey said: "I know enough about medicine to say that the nature of this fracture was such as would be caused by a blow on the head with a blunt instrument. I've never seen that type of fracture from an accidental fall."

More Arrests Expected In Counterfeiting Case

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The arrest bag in the West's latest counterfeit ring stands at two today and Tom Hanson, special U.S. Secret Service agent, says he expects to take three more persons into custody.

Ellis John Aylward, 45, Oakland, photo printer who is on parole from Leavenworth on an El Paso, Tex., bogus money charge, was arrested late yesterday.

Earlier Mrs. Bridgette May Johnson, 29, of Richmond, a thrice-married blonde, restaurant operator, was taken into custody after $215,000 in excellent counterfeit bills—tens and fifties—was found in an overnight bag.

Neither could post $2,500 in genuine money required to make bail.

They were arraigned before U.S. Commissioner Donald Costine who set their hearing for March 9, a day after the federal grand jury is scheduled to get their cases.

Hanson said Aylward met Albert R. Foster in 1953 when both were serving sentences on similar counterfeit charges in Leavenworth.

He said that when they were released, Aylward contacted Foster in Los Angeles where the two bought counterfeiting equipment and transferred it to the San Francisco Bay Area. It was found Friday in a barn at El Sobrante.

Foster was killed in a December auto accident at Ely, Nev.

Hanson said Mrs. Johnson, mother of two, bought the operation, with Aylward staying on to help wholesale the counterfeit money.

Hanson said Aylward admitted having the bag full of money in his possession Feb. 13 and wholesaleing $300 in counterfeit to passers for $100 in real money.

Hanson says it now appears $2,500 in bogus money has been circulated since the first of the year in Idaho, Washington, Utah and California.

However, $9,000 that was wholesaled never got any further, Hanson says. He says Mrs. Johnson sold the money to an undercover man for $1,000, leading to the final crackdown.

Hanson said it was Foster's ambition to make the world's greatest counterfeit money.

"Those bills were good enough to fool a banker," Hanson said, "but there was a flaw—a faint fuzziness around the eyes of Grant on the fifties and of Alexander Hamilton on the tens."

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

L.A. Jailbreak

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Eleven men, five of them considered "extremely dangerous," fled the supposedly escape-proof booking area of the county jail and touched off one of Southern California's biggest manhunts today.

A 12th prisoner mysteriously showed up at his home saying he "walked out" of the jail after his bail was posted.

The prisoners fled from the ground-floor booking room at the Hall of Justice yesterday after apparently picking a "burglar-proof" lock on a steel door.

More Heckling

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

For the fourth straight time white hecklers attacked Negroes marching through downtown Nashville, Tenn., after stand-in demonstrations at four motion picture theaters.

Police said rocks and eggs were thrown at about 125 demonstrators last night, but that there were no serious injuries.

Hunt Missing Girl

NEW YORK (AP) — The mass police search goes on for little Edith Kiecorius, who vanished Wednesday afternoon after being left for a few minutes on a front stoop of a house in Chelsea.

A sound truck moved through the lower West Side Manhattan area last night, appealing in English and Spanish for information leading to the whereabouts of the blonde, 4-year-old girl.

Ike Would Help

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower is eager to help Republicans refurbish their party for the 1962 and 1964 elections, Sen. Styles Bridges, (R-N.H.), reported today.

Bridges, who heads the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said that in a telephone conversation Eisenhower invited congressional Republican leaders to visit him this spring at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm.

Salt Mogul Dies

SANTA BARBARA (AP)—Sterling Morton, 75, multimillionaire chairman of the board of the Morton Salt Co., died Thursday.

Fire Damages Embassy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The French ambassador to the United States, wearing evening clothes, rescued valuable paintings from his blazing embassy last night while his wife took time out to change into street clothes.

The fire broke out in an elevator shaft, swept through the attic and caused serious damage to the three-story structure. No one was hurt. There was no immediate estimate of damage.

Airports Abuzz

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's airports were abuzz with increasing activity today as more of the big jets and propeller craft, stilled during a six-day walkout of flight engineers, got back into the air.

Six of the seven airlines crippled during the strike, the worst and costliest in American aviation history, were on normal or near-normal schedules today.

These were Pan American, American, Trans World, Eastern, National and Flying Tigers —airlines taking part in an agreement under which the engineers returned to work while a presidential commission searches for a remedy to the basic cause of the strike.

Eruption Ceases

HONOLULU (AP) — Halemaumau fire pit in the mighty Kilauea volcano ceased erupting yesterday after spewing forth a chain of fiery lava fountains up to 100 feet high for eight hours.

No one was hurt and no damage was reported during the short-lived eruption.

Satellite Launched

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —Tracking stations scanned the skies today on the slim chance that a "radio brain" satellite is orbiting the earth despite a malfunction in the upper stages of the launching rocket.

The 75-pound satellite, designed to investigate the effects of the ionosphere on long-range radio and television communications, was hurled aloft from this spaceport last night in the nose of a four-stage rocket.

The ionosphere reflects radio waves back to earth and thus is vital to communications.

Refugee Aid Asked

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The AFL-CIO today called on the government to expand its aid to Cuban refugees. The labor group said the problem is worse than the one created when refugees streamed to America following the 1956 Hungarian revolt.

The organization said that from 30,000 to 60,000 Cubans have already fled from the Castro regime and come to live in the Miami area, and an additional 5,000 each to Tampa, Fla., and to New York City.

Iowa Bank Embezzled Of Half Million Dollars

KNOXVILLE, Iowa (AP) —Examiners were at work today clearing up details of Iowa's third big bank embezzlement in two months.

The latest came to light yesterday when Elden L. Job, 59, president of the Community National Bank and Trust Co. of Knoxville hanged himself, leaving an estimated half million-dollar shortage that stunned this town of 7,817 in south central Iowa.

Job left a "dead man's confession" saying that he used the bank's money through forged notes to cover bad investments and to make donations around town.

Unlike the situation at Sheldon in northwest Iowa where a 2 million-dollar embezzlement closed the Sheldon National Bank, the Knoxville institution was covered by a 1-million-dollar fidelity bond which officials said more than took care of the shortage. Business at Community National went on as usual.

The Sheldon bank closed on Jan. 16 with the arrest of the assistant cashier, Burnice Geiger. She admitted the embezzlement and later was sentenced to 15 years in prison.

The third case occurred at Malvern in southwest Iowa Jan. 30. John E. Willard, 40, vice president and cashier of the Malvern Trust & Savings Bank, committed suicide, authorities said, after a $55,000 shortage was discovered.

Private funeral services were to be held today for Job, Knoxville's erstwhile leading citizen. He had been in the banking business here for 40 years.

He not only headed Community National, which he formed through a merger in 1933, but held a majority stock interest in Knoxville's other bank, Iowa State Savings.

His family, one af the best known in town, included his wife Bernice, and his two sons, Ned, assistant cashier of Community National and Louis, vice president of the other bank. A daughter, Judith, is a student at Drake University.

Privacy For Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House no longer will inform newsmen in advance where and when President Kennedy will go to church on Sundays because he "desires to worship in peace."

This was seen as another in a series of efforts to give the presidential family a maximum amount of privacy in its personal life.

Tornadoes Expected To Hit Wide Southern States Area

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Tornadoes threatened four drenched southern states today with a bitter blacklash of hail and thunderstorms from North Carolina to the Texas Gulf.

The weather bureau warned of "one or two tornadoes" expected to batter a 120-mile-wide strip north and south of a line from west central Georgia to southeastern North Carolina.

Heavy rains accompanied twisters into Georgia and Alabama yesterday. Water spilled out of creeks and streams feeding three Georgia rivers and officials said high water along the Alabama River was approaching "dire emergency." Alamaba reported at least four injuries yesterday in tornado winds.

In Mississippi, about 5,000 persons still were homeless and National Guard troops began evacuating 800 residents of Shubuta on Chickasawhay River—"our next trouble spot," a state official said.

Hattiesburg, Miss., was confronted with a sanitation problem and scattered cases of measles, mumps and chicken pox among children in evacuation shelters, but authorities said the city's normal water supply was expected to hold up. The Red Cross distributed 14,400 disposable diapers to young families washed out of their homes.

Persons returned to their homes at Bogalusa, La., as Pearl River floodwaters turned away from the city toward the Mississippi state line. Water covered roads at six points in four Louisiana parishes.

Williams Trip In Africa Hit

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — The president of the Nairobi Chamber of Commerce said today visiting Americans like assistant secretary of state for African affairs G. Nennen Williams would be "better off at home minding their own business.

Williams is making a swing through Africa. The former governor of Michigan earlier this week said that "Africa should be for the Africans," explaining he meant Africans of all races, not just Negroes.

R. J. Hillard of the Nairobi, commenting on Williams speech, said today:

"If only our American friends would kindly stay at home and solve their own problems regarding Negroes, leaving us in our rather stupid British way to solve our problems here, they would be doing a far greater service."

DUE ON 1962 MODELS

Auto Makers To Install Safety Belt Anchors

DETROIT (AP)—The auto industry is going to make it easier for you to put seat belts in your car.

Starting with the 1962 models, all the major domestic manufacturers will install safety belt attachments in the front seats of all passenger autos. The anchors will be affixed to the auto frame or sub-frame.

The companies said yesterday that they will provide uniform attachments built to industry-wide specifications to provide buyers with an easy, economical method of attaching seat belts. Previous costs have run as high as $20 per belt because of the drilling and other labor costs. Now the buyer will have to pay additionally only for the belt. Belts alone cost as little as $3.50.

New York State Sen. Edward J. Speno visited the automakers here this week with a delegation from his state. Speno heads a legislative committee on motor vehicle safety in New York. He has introduced a law requiring that all autos sold in the state starting with the 1962 model year carry such attachment points.

Speno said research has proved that deaths can be reduced 50 per cent and serious injuries 60 per cent by using seat belts.

Ford has been offering seat belts as optional equipment since 1955, but has had few takers.

Speno said he hoped safety belts would receive much wider acceptance now that they will be much cheaper and easier to install.

General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, American Motors and Studebaker-Packard all said they will install the belt attachments as standard equipment.

Mental Unit Dedicated

NAPA (AP)—A special unit for mentally ill children was dedicated at Napa State Hospital today with a plea by Gov. Brown for an all-out effort to help youth—"the greatest, richest resources of our state."

Brown said the 216-bed facility — California's second — "marks another outstanding achievement in California's nationally recognized program of mental hygiene."

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Feb. 25, the 56th day of the year with 309 more in 1961.

The moon is approaching its full phase..

The morning stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Venus and Mars.

On this day in history:

In 1793, heads of various government departments met with President Washington at his home. It was the first recorded meeting of a President's cabinet.

In 1841, French painter Pierre Renoir, was born.

In 1873, operatic tenor Enrico Caruso was born in Naples, Italy.

In 1901, J. P. Morgan incorporated the U. S. Steel Corp., the first so-called "billion-dollar corporation."

In 1948, in a bloodless coup, the Communists seized complete control of Czechoslovakia.

In 1954, the Senate defeated the proposed Bricker Amendment which would have restricted presidential treaty-making powers.

A thought for today: John Ruskin said: "Life without industry is guilt, industry without art is brutality."

Redwood, Marin Tars Win League Cage Championships

Giants Top Bulldogs For Prep Loop Title

By GLENN BECKER

Clinching the prized Tournament of Champions berth in true championship style, Redwood High last night racked up the 1961 Marin County Athletic League basketball title by squelching San Rafael 39-33 in the losers' gymnasium.

Coach Dick Hart's rugged Giants certainly deserve their tournament bid, off their clutch play during this hectic, tell-tale week. Tied for first place with Tamalpais and San Rafael going into Tuesday's action, Redwood crushed Tam, 56-38, and last night completed the twin-killing at the expense of the Bulldogs.

As they were against Tam three days before, the Giants again were paced by the great effort of star forward Rich Brear. The 6-foot-3 senior pumped in 20 points last night for a two-game total of 41, and grabbed 10 rebounds to lead both teams.

Redwood fell behind 11-3 in the first quarter before surging back during the last three periods to overcome the Bulldogs' good early foot. Brear bucketed nine of the Giants' first ten points as they worked back into a tie at 14-14 in the second stanza. San Rafael led at halftime, though, when guard Rich Curry sank two free throws.

GIFT BASKET

The Giants picked up in the second half where they left off, and worked into a 24-21 lead after three quarters. Guard Herb Schrieber, who led the Redwood barrage in this period, was the beneficiary of an astounding "skull" by Bulldog Bruce MacPhail. The latter grabbed a center jump and dribbled hard for an easy layup—toward the wrong basket! He missed the shot, but Schrieber was right there to tap it in.

The two gift points put Redwood ahead for the first time at 19-18, but the gutty MacPhail showed his fortitude by immediately sinking a basket in the right hoop, to temporarily regain the lead for San Rafael.

A three-point play in the fourth quarter by league-scoring champion Randy Petrini, who set the new league record expected of him last night with eight points to spare, drew the Bulldogs up to a 24-25 deficit. Redwood responded by tightening even more its tenacious zone defense, and, taking advantage of a pretty layup by Bowen and Brear's six straight foul shots, rang up 10 consecutive points for an 11-point lead. The Giants survived a last minute San Rafael rally when Bowen's free throw with 20 seconds left gave them a 38-33 advantage.

REBOUND STARS

Redwood's Hart made good use of his bench, as Bowen and Mike Hoffman, went in to rack up the rebounds in the fourth period. The former picked off eight loose balls and contributed four points to the Giants' last period assault. Schrieber, a backcourt whiz against both Tam and San Rafael, tallied nine points. Petrini topped the Bulldogs with 13, while Curry meshed 10.

The Giant Bs also came from behind to whip San Rafael's Bullpups, 29-23. Grant Stephenson of Redwood edged Bret Tovani of the losers for scoring honors, 11 points to 10.

Hoetger Sets Cage Record As Tam Wins

In his last high school basketball game, Tamalpais guard Connie Hoetger last night broke the Marin County Athletic League record for individual scoring and led his team in smashing the high team score record for a single game.

The 6-foot, 3-inch senior also had a major role in the Indians' decisive 72 to 52 victory over Novato High which placed Tam in second place in the 1960-61 MCAL standings with a 7-3, win-loss record. Novato lost 10 straight games and won none.

Hoetger amassed 33 points, 6 better than the previous record held jointly by Terry Tevis of San Rafael and Ed O'Connell of Marin Catholic. He did it mostly with one-handed jump shots from the outside with an occasional drive play set up by his teammates. Fifteen of Hoetger's 24 floor shots sailed through the bucket for a blistering 63 per cent statistic.

Coach Eddie Chavez said his boys asked if they could start feeding Hoetger the ball when at halftime he had amassed 18 points.

'GO GET IT'

"I told them if he is to break a record he will—just keep playing the regular offense. But in about the last three minutes he was about four points off a record so I told his mates to set him."

Hoetger himself until that last few minutes had been passing off all evening, as well as scoring. His colleague was Pete Dornbach who chalked a healthy 14 digits and played a skillful defensive game.

Novato had a big gun too: Bob Sparrow with 23 counts.

The Hornets faced a hot offensive squad and were behind 20 to 9 at the completion of the first period. They fought hard in the second time section and managed to have only a five point deficit at halftime when the Indians led 32 to 27. But by the end of the third period Chavez' powerhouse was in command 45 to 36 with the entire Injun tribe having gone to war.

Novato, as it has done all season, never lost its spirit, nor threw in the towel. The Hornets forced what is usually a tight defensive club to fork over 52 points.

"Novato has improved tremendously under Dick Paynter and can be proud of itself," lauded Coach Chavez.

WILD FINISH IN CHAMPIONSHIP GAME

Several fist fights among over-exuberant student spectators (see below) broke out at wild finish of last night's Redwood-San Rafael basketball game. As Redwood had cinched victory and only seconds remained in game, fans poured out of stands onto floor where the fights broke out. Above, Redwood star Rich Brear, surrounded by fans, players and beaming Coach Dick Hart, prepares to take foul shot awarded him when order was restored at end of game. Apparently no one was hurt in the fist fights, but photographer Jim Kean said some pretty stiff punches were landed. That player on bottom of photo at lower left is not a player, incidentally; he was wearing Bermuda shorts. (Jim Kean photos)

Mays Sees Good Year; Sanford, Loes In Fold

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Willie Mays has won games for the Giants with his arm, his legs, his bat and his baseball sense. Now he's sniffing a pennant for the San Franciscans.

Willie, Mr. Everything for the Giants, watched three of Mike McCormick's pitches sail by yesterday, then blasted the fourth over a palm tree behind the left field fence.

"There's something in the air," he said. "We're going to go real good this year."

Mays and the signing of righthanders Jack Sanford and Billy Loes brought a smile of satisfaction to Manager Al Dark.

Chub Feeney, the club's vice president, told Dark that Sanford, a starter, and Loes, a reliever, agreed to sign their contracts and were on their way to camp.

Sanford was 12-14 last season and Loes 3-2.

Feeney indicated Sanford will get about $22,000 and Loes about $20,000, each righthander taking a slight cut.

That puts everybody on the dotted line except pitcher Juan Marichal and Jim Marshall, a first baseman.

Marichal is believed carrying his contract from his home in the Dominican Republic and Marshall is not due in camp until Monday when full squad practices are scheduled to start.

Champ Paret Vs. Ortega In TV Fight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Benny "Kid" Paret, Cuba's world welterweight champion, rated the favorite's role tonight in a 10-round nationally televised non-title fight with Gaspar Ortega of Tijuana, Mex.

The bout goes on at 7 p.m., PST, at the Olympic Auditorium, with ABC screening it for the TV viewers.

Paret's manager, Manuel Alfaro, reiterated today the veteran Ortega might get a title bout if he puts on a crowd-pleasing match.

Ortega has fought and won from former champions Tony De Marco and Kid Gavilan and outpointed Paret in 1959.

The Paret bout was before the Kid won the title from Don Jordan in Las Vegas, Nev., last May.

S.F. Included In Proposed National Pro Soccer Loop

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Western soccer leaders have outlined plans for international competitions this summer for Pacific Coast teams, a series of exhibitions by top European and Latin-American clubs and a new professional league in the United States.

The three-point program was presented league officers from Los Angeles, San Francisco and Vancouver, British Columbia at a weekend meeting in Fresno.

Ernest Feibusch, secretary of the San Francisco Soccer Football League, told of the plans:

1. A Pacific Coast International Championship tournament will be held in Los Angeles on May 28 and May 30, Memorial Day. On the first day, the league champions of San Francisco will meet the league champions from Vancouver while the Los Angeles league winners will meet the top team from Mexico City.

2. Jean Leon, a Beverly Hills restaurateur, plans to bring 11 international teams to Los Angeles for a series of exhibition games this summer. It is hoped these teams will also play in other West Coast cities. John Smith, president of the Greater Los Angeles Soccer League, outlined the plan at the Fresno meeting since Leon was not present.

3. Smith said Leon also wants to establish a professional continental soccer league by 1963. He hopes to have clubs from Los Angeles, San Francisco, Vancouver, St. Louis, Chicago, Philadelphia, New York and Baltimore.

For the Pacific Coast International Championships this summer, Feibusch said it is hoped Wrigley Field in Los Angeles will be available. If not, another site will be chosen.

The international teams for the pro exhibitions, many of which will also play in New York, are Real Madrid and Espanol from Spain, Rapid of Vienna, Austria, Racing Club of Paris, Guadalajara of Mexico, Red Star of Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Maccabi of Tel Aviv, Israel, Vasco de Gama from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Monaco from Monte Carlo; Roma of Rome, Italy; Hibernians of Scotland, and Arsberattelse of Sweden.

Plans call for telecasts of the exhibition matches.

Fights Last Night

Boston—Joe Denucci, 165, Newton, Mass. and Ralph "Tiger" Jones, 160, New York, draw, 10.

Rome, Italy — Giulio Rinaldi, 178½, Italy, outpointed Freddie Mack, 178, Baltimore, 10.

Havana — Juvenal Minguez, 127½, Cuba, stopped Max Huerta, 126¾, Mexico, 10.

LIVIE SCORES 36

Tars Share Title In Thrilling Win

College of Marin Tars were busy today — celebrating their fifth straight Golden Valley Conference basketball championship and preparing for a playoff contest next Friday with co-champion Shasta.

The Mariners, winners by 69-66 over American River last night at Sacramento, and Shasta wound up in a tie for the title with 8-2 records and will clash on the neutral American River court in Sacramento next Friday to see who represents the conference in the State Junior College Championships at Santa Maria March 9-10-11.

In posting their sixth straight conference victory last night, Marin had to rally from a four-point deficit with four minutes to play in a thrill-soaked do-or-die battle at Sacramento.

A tremendous shooting performance by 5-foot-11 freshman Lynn Livie sparked Coach Cal Riemcke's Mariners, especially in the waning moments when the chips were down. American River broke away from a see-saw battle and held a 59-55 edge with just four minutes to go. Then Livie fired through five straight points, Ron Blum and Dale Aman each chipped in a couple of crucial baskets and Marin sailed out to a 65-60 edge. From there, it was a matter of stalling, taking only "sure" shots and hanging on for dear life.

GREAT SHOOTING

Livie, who came to Marin from Petaluma High School, turned in a remarkable shooting exhibition, hitting 13 of 26 floor shots and 10 of 11 free throws for 36 points.

Early in the fray he almost single-handedly kept Marin up with upset-minded American River by scoring 10 of his team's first 12 points. Marin's halftime edge of 32-31 was typical of the closeness of the entire game. In the final 10 minutes the lead changed hands 12 times.

Aman wound up with 11 points, Blum 10 and John Blomquist 7.

Most of Livie's buckets were outside of American River's zone defense around the edge of the key.

Marin will get a tuneup for next week's playoff by meeting the University of Cal Frosh tonight at Novato High School, 8 o'clock.

Marin Edges Pirates For 3rd Straight

It's called "by the skin of your teeth," and it's not the play by Thorton Wilder in this case, but a description of Marin Catholic's last three basketball victories, which includes the Wildcats' defeat of Sir Francis Drake High, 42 to 40, last night.

The total points by which Marin has won its last three contests in the Marin County Athletic League equals FIVE.

It was like a ping pong game last night to see who would be in third or fourth spot in the league's final standing. The result? Marin's seasonal record reads 5-5, win-loss and Drake's, 4-6.

NIP AND TUCK

Drake, at the first quarter buzzer, was one big point up on Marin and at halftime Drake was one big point behind Marin. The counts were 7-6 and 17-16 respectively. The third quarter was the "rip-roarunest," with the Pirates edging ahead mostly by the skill of Bill Collins who saw 17 in the point column adjacent his name after the contest. The third period five point span seemed much more to Drake than it really was. For Marin it was no gap at all and the Cats managed to close it in the final quarter and move ahead for five more points. The Pirates couldn't get the ping pong ball back across the table, so to speak, in that final struggle. They strained to within two digits of doing so, but Marin, with spearheaders Jim Soden, Jerry Smith and Captain Ed O'Connell, held tight. Wildcats center Soden was runner-up to Collins in game points with 14. Smith scored 12 and O'Connell marked 10.

VARSITY SCORERS

DRAKE—Anderson 2-2-6, Bresnan 2-1-5, Collins 7-3-17, Johnson 0-3-3, Wallace 2-5-9.

MARIN — Smith 4-4-12, O'Connell 3-4-10, Soden 5-4-14, Ongaro 2-0-4, Enos 1-0-2.

Drake	7	9	15	9—40
Marin	6	11	15	10—42

HAMILTON WINS IN CAGE TOURNEY

McCHORD AIR FORCE BASE, Wash. (AP)—Hamilton AFB, representing the 28th Air Division, bombed Kincheloe AFB, Mich., 98-86 yesterday to win a berth in the All-Air Force Basketball Tournament next month.

Hamilton's Jerry Chandler paced the Californians with 29 points.

Sally Moore Gains Finals In Jamaica

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Sally Moore of Bakersfield met top-seeded Christine Truman of Britain today in the final round of the women's division of the St. Andrews International Tennis Tournament. Miss Moore upset defending champion Ann Haydon of England yesterday, 7-9, 6-1, 8-6.

Whitt Captures Lead In Venezuela Tourney

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Don Whitt of Borrego Springs, Calif., carried a two-stroke lead into the final 18 holes of the Caracas Open Golf Tournament today.

Whitt, winner of the Maracaibo Open last week, fired a four-under-par 66 yesterday to take over the lead from Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina. Whitt's 54-hole total was 206, De Vicenzeo's 208.

Marin Priest Feels Present Persecution Of Russian Orthodox Church To Worsen

Rev. Boris Symeonoff, pastor of the Russian Orthodox Church in San Anselmo which serves all of Marin County, feels that recent persecutions of churches reported from the Soviet Union will increase. But in spite of the extreme government action "Christ's church can never be really destroyed."

Father Symeonoff expressed his views in an interview this week with the Independent-Journal at his parish, 102 Ross Avenue. Although the priest speaks some English his daughter, Ann, 14, acted as interpreter.

"The people in Russia—and you must remember I left Estonia long ago—believe in God, and anyone who believes in God, always will," he said.

A San Francisco newspaper reported this week that the Soviet government is sponsoring atheism ceremonies and that income tax and license powers are being used to suppress parishes in the country. Pastor Symeonoff said he felt even harsher tactics will probably be used, but as in the past they too will not be effective.

The Marin priest said the government has allowed the church to operate because it respects the number of people who believe in God, secretly and openly.

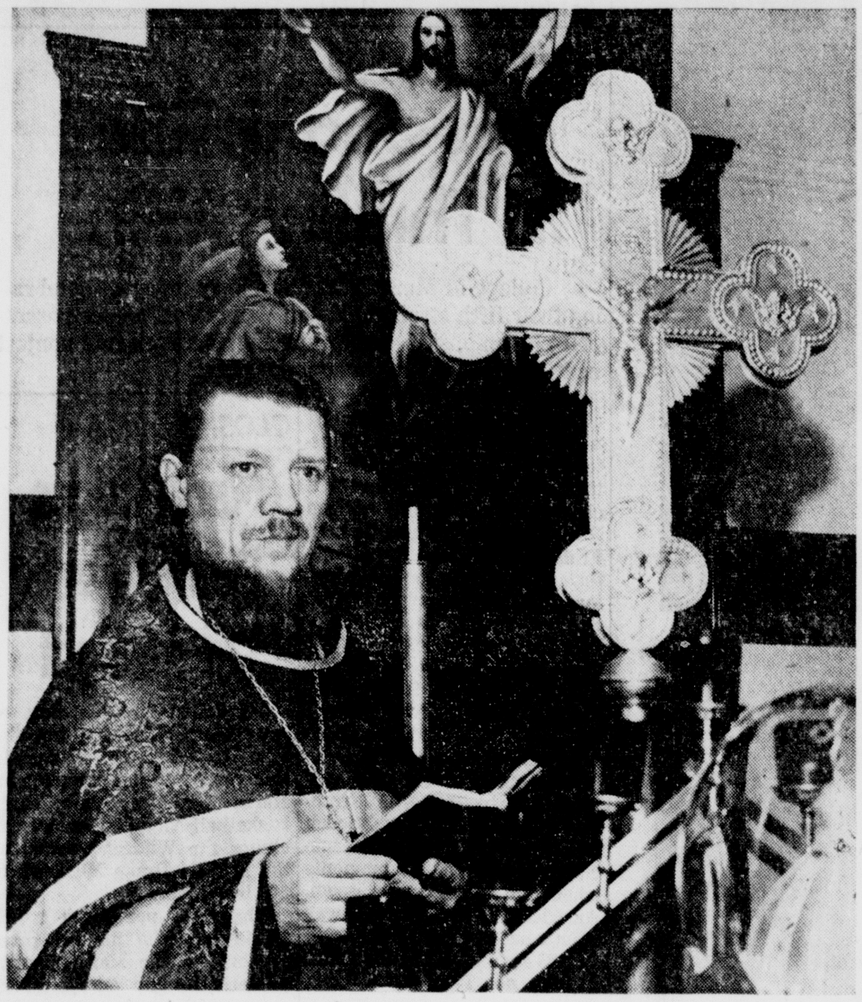
The San Anselmo priest is 49 and a native of Cronstadt, Russia. When he was 7 he moved with his family to Estonia which was then a newly independent country bordering the Gulf of Finland and the Baltic. It was conquered by Russia in 1940. At 18, although his father wanted him to be an engineer, Boris Symeonoff decided to study for the priesthood.

He attended Sorbonne University in Paris in 1931. In 1934 he entered the Russian Orthodox Institute there and was ordained a priest five years later. He then served as pastor to churches in Estonia and Salomika, Greece, before coming to Marin in 1957, was associate pastor at St. Sercius' Church at the Paris institute.

He and his wife, Olga, and daughter Ann, resided at the San Anselmo parish, St. Nicholas. Ann is an eighth grader at Isabel Cook School. Three years ago she hardly knew a word of English. She now speaks it fluently.

The St. Nicholas' congregation was formed without a regular pastor by Mr. and Mrs. Max Galaktionoff of 1304 Grand Avenue, San Rafael, in 1952. The present church building, formerly a house, was purchased in 1956. Services are held mostly in Slavic (old Russian) with some in Greek. Others are in English at Thanksgiving and American Christmas. Worship is at 10 a.m. Sundays. During Lent a short service is held daily except Sunday at 9 a.m. and 7 p.m. The congregation includes some 150 persons, 30 of whom are regular members.

Saturdays at 10 a.m., a Russian language class is held for children and a catechism class for adults in different rooms of the church. Father Symeonoff said the church is considering a catachism for children. It would be interpreted in English.



ORTHODOX PRIEST — Rev. Boris Symeonoff, pastor of St. Nicholas' Church in San Anselmo stands at parish altar in formal robes. Father Symeonoff, who is a priest of the Russian Orthodox Church, studied in Paris from where he came to Marin three years ago. He said the main difference between his church in Europe and in America is the modern way in which some of the American priests dress, especially in the East. He said it will be a long time before many priests in the West go without beards and wear their hair short. (Independent-Journal photo)

Air Force Chief's Home Renovation To Cost $80,000

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The residence of Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Thomas D. White is being renovated at a cost of $80,000 to provide him with adequate space for official entertainment, the Air Force said today.

White's 2½-story brick house is in Ft. Myer, Va., not far from the Pentagon.

In an official statement, the Air Force said that White has been living in quarters substantially inferior to those of the chiefs of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps.

To solve the problem, the Air Force said, agreement has been reached with the Army for rehabilitation of White's house.

"This will cost about $80,000, much less than construction of new, comparable quarters," the Air Force said in a statement released after disclosure of the renovation was made by a Washington newspaper.

The renovation includes placing a glassed-in porch around much of the old-mansion-type residence.

The statement added that "adequate quarters for the chief of staff of the Air Force have been a problem ever since the Air Force became a separate department."

The chiefs of staff of the armed services have many official visitors and are required to do considerable amounts of official entertaining.

The statement said:

"The chiefs of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps are now located in better houses built many years ago which are substantially larger than that now available to the Air Force chiefs.

"Proposals to build new quarters have been considered, but these have been discarded because of the high cost."

The statement was prepared last Nov. 2 as "an answer to inquiry." This is a type of Pentagon release which is held back for use if questions are asked; in other words, a reporter gets the statement only if he knows enough about the story to ask a question.

Harriman Due To Start Envoy Tour Of Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy is sending his roving ambassador, W. Averell Harriman, on a tour of Western European capitals starting tomorrow.

Harriman will visit London, Paris, Bonn and Rome to meet with the top officials, convey Kennedy's personal greetings and "discuss matters of broad mutual interest."

Beyond that, there was no amplification of the purpose of the trip—the first Harriman will have undertaken overseas since his appointment as ambassador-at-large for the new administration.

"It is anticipated," the White House said, "that Mr. Harriman will see Prime Minister Macmillan in London, President De Gaulle in Paris Chancellor Adenauer in Bonn, and Prime Minister Fanfani in Rome. While in Paris, Ambassador Harriman also expects to meet with the permanent representatives of the North Atlantic Council."

Details of the itinerary were left to the State Department to announce.

'Heart Sunday' Set Tomorrow

Tomorrow will be "Heart Sunday" in Marin and all over the United States.

In Marin County, 1,900 volunteers will visit their neighbors to call for Heart Fund contributions and to distribute the latest information about heart attacks, high blood pressure and strokes. A rheumatic fever pamphlet will also be distributed.

Heart Sunday volunteers will leave pre-addressed envelopes for families that are not at home during the two-hour canvass tomorrow between 2 and 4 p.m.

Contributions may also be sent to the local postmaster, it was announced.

after tossing his wallet on the front seat next to the driver.

Barclay walked to the rail and talked quietly to Clay for about 10 minutes. When the young man reached for a cigarette the officer offered him, Barclay grabbed his arm and dragged him back to safety.

Clay was taken to San Francisco County Hospital for observation after telling officers he was despondent and had been suffering from pains in his head.

Barclay, who has been stationed on the Golden Gate Bridge for 19 years, said he had been instrumental in "talking" many potential jumpers out of taking their lives. He is being transferred to a San Francisco beat on Monday.

son was removed from the car while he was too sleepy to see his father.

The car which was struck by the death vehicle was driven by Clarence Westley, 53, of San Francisco. His wife, Iola, received a bump on the head but was not taken to the hospital.

Harrell's death was the fifth traffic fatality in Marin this year, compared to three at this time last year.

Officials To Meet On Highway Plan

San Rafael and the California Division of Highways officials will sit down together for discussion of widening of Highway 101 on Wednesday.

City councilmen, the city manager, engineer, supervisor of public works and consulting engineer Daniel Coleman will meet with District Planning Engineer R. A. Hayler in the division of highways offices in San Francisco at 2 p.m.

Under discussion will be Coleman's plan for varying the state's proposal for eight freeway lanes through San Rafael. Discussions are expected to take two to three months before a freeway agreement is reached.

Lagunitas Trustees Ask Construction Bids

Lagunitas School trustees last night decided to call for bids on a six-room addition to the school.

Architect J. Martin Rosse reported that plans had been approved by the state.

In the meantime, the school trustees are continuing to negotiate with the Lagunitas Development Co. for purchase of 3.5 acre proposed building site to the west of the school, School Supt. Clifford L. Frye reported.

The trustees vtoed to increase the district's liability insurance from $300,000 to $500,000 for each accident, Frye noted. Firemans Fund carries the policy.

The board also voted to enter the district into the special Marin County School service for handicapped children, Frye said.

Handicapped youngsters will be transported to the Marin Dale School.

The board also voted to participate in the County's audio visual and library service, Frye said.

The district will pay a fee of $1.50 per student for the audio visual service and $1200 during the year for the library service.

Frye also reported to the trustees that there were now 375 students enrolled in the school.

The board will meet again on Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Lagunitas School.

Civic Center Post Office Low Bidder Is Announced

John J. McDonnell of Upper Darby, Pa., was apparent low bidder of six bids on the Marin County Civic Center branch post office which were opened yesterday afternoon in offices of H. G. Mueller, regional real estate manager in San Francisco for the Post Office Department.

The amounts of the bids was not initially announced. They were expressed in terms of annual rental of a building to be constructed according to designs of the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation in order to harmonize with other buildings of the center.

The bids will be taken under advisement by the postal authorities and announcement as to acceptance of bid, and amount, will be made after processing and submission to Washington.

Despite earlier reports that tidings of the temporary "stop order" against civic center construction had scared off eastern capital, two of the six bids were from a distance—the apparent low bid from Pennsylvania and another from Florida. The other four were from local financiers or contractors.

The post office reserves power to negotiate after the bids are opened. There may be discussions with bidders, and finally the real estate department prepares reports and sends in a statement of justification on which final decision is based.

The post office has a 50-year ground lease from the county at $1 a year. Plans call for the building, on the southwest side of Golf Avenue on the 140-acre civic center site near Santa Venetia, to have approximately 4,088 square feet with an 850-square foot outside loading platform.

An area of 19,306 square feet has been allocated to parking and truck maneuvering. The building will be used as a branch of the San Rafael post office.

Bids are on a basis of construction in accordance with Wright Foundation design, and leasing at agreed monthly rental calculated by the year for 15 years. The post office holds power of renewal to a total of 50 years.

Bolinas Asks Special Patrol On Weekends

Bolinas Community, Inc. last night voted to ask the Marin County Sheriff's office and Board of Supervisors for special patrolling on holidays and weekends.

The motion was prompted, reported Secretary Arthur E. Carpenter, by "overcrowding of the town on holidays and particularly last Washington's Birthday."

Carpenter said that Wednesday cars were parked from one end of the town to the other and that residents could not get out of their driveways.

If the county refuses to provide the special police force, Carpenter said, the community would have to support "local police on holidays."

It was also decided to show the film "Operation Abolition" dealing with the city hall riots in San Francisco last year at the center during March, Carpenter reported.

The next meeting is scheduled for March 31 at 8 p.m. in the Bolinas Community Center.

Injured Sailor Gets Off Critical List

Charles F. Burkhardt Jr., 21, Navy electronics technician sceond class from New Orleans, was taken off the critical list today at Marin General Hospital and has regained consciousness. His condition was still decribed as serious.

Burkhardt was a passenger in an auto accident which claimed two lives and injured two others Monday night. The auto tumbled 450 feet down a cliff near Stinson Beach after leaving the road.

Jet Plane Ceremony Will Be Rebroadcast

Dedication ceremonies of a jet plane for the children of Novato will be broadcast on radio station KTIM tomorrow at 2:30 p.m., following "Marin Panorama."

The dedication, tape-recorded by manager Hugh Turner, featured Col. Harvey E. Henderson, Hamilton Air Force Base commander, Novato Mayor Wayne Womack, School Supt. W. J. J. Smith and Eugene de Brecht as master of ceremonies.

MARIN FIRE CALLS

YESTERDAY:

1:58 p.m., Marin County—Two acre grass fire at Auburn Street in California Park; probably caused by children.

2:07 p.m., Marin City—Smoke reported coming from broken chimney at House 217.

5:43 p.m., San Anselmo—Playhouse built by children caught fire from candles at 510 Fawn Drive, Sleepy Hollow; put out before the arrival of firemen.

TODAY:

6:19 a.m., San Rafael—Aided police in freeing Edward Jones Harrell of San Bruno from wreckage of auto accident at Highway 101 south of the overpass.

LAST OF SERIES

'Candlelight Concert' Balanced, Beautiful

By DANIEL SCARLETT

Artistry, atmosphere and a beautifully balanced program joined last evening at Brown's Hall in Mill Valley to make a resounding success of this season's final "Candlelight Concert" presented under the sponsorship of the Homestead Valley Improvement Club.

Artistry, in generous measure, came from the "Bach to Mozart" group, whose success has been immediate and unqualified. Last evening they provided a basic chamber orchestra in miniature (four strings, two woodwinds, and keyboard continuo) comprised of Everett O'Bannon, first violin; David Mallory, second violin; Mary James, viola; Helen Stross, cello; Raymond Fabrizzio, flute; Ray Duste, oboe; and Margaret Fabrizzio, harpsichord. The ensemble achieved an amazingly full-bodied sonority and maintained a sensitive balance of tone throughout.

The atmosphere of this chamber series is a composite of candlelit tables and an air of general fun and informality. Most of the male musicians were without neckties.

The much-neglected art of programming was certainly not neglected in last evening's concert. Not only in what they played but also in the order in which they played it, the group showed a rare sensitivity toward this crucial aspect of music making. The program offered a sparkling Vivaldi, followed by an intimate Mozart, then a blithe C. P. E. Bach, and the whole crowned by a sublime yet intensely personal J. S. Bach.

Vivaldi's Concerto for Piccolo and Orchestra treated the audience to a scintillating performance by soloist Raymond Fabrizzio.

The program moved into deeper musical matters with Mozart's Duo No. 2 in B flat for Violin and Viola. Congratulations are due Everett O'Bannon and Mary James for giving this extraordinary music. If the viola's intonation was occasionally questionable, the music's message soared above such finicky feelings. We hope these two will favor us with the other duo in the future.

The second half of the program began with C. P. E. Bach's Trio Sonata in B flat for Flute, Oboe and Continuo — a glowing piece of music, glowingly and lovingly played by Raymond Fabrizzio and Ray Duste.

In the final number, J. S. Bach's Cantata No. 56, "Ich will den Kreuzstab," for solo voice and orchestra, the full ensemble was joined by baritone soloist Edgar Jones, whose love for every note and syllable he sang was apparent throughout.

In the third aria, the oboe obligato seemed now and then rushed, but otherwise the ensemble maintained a fine rapport with the singer's deeply felt interpretation.

In addition to this highly rewarding concert, the audience also received the news that the "Candlelight Concerts" will be a permanent annual fixture on Marin's music calendar, and the further news that the group hopes to give a Mozart Festival this year in late summer.

Our hats go off to all those in the Homestead Valley Improvement Club who have made this novel and exciting enterprise a reality.

Mission Scheduled At St. Patrick's Church

Rev. Cyril V. Leach of the San Francisco Archdiocese Mission will conduct a mission at St. Patrick's Church in Larkspur daily beginning tomorrow through next Saturday.

OBITUARIES

Mary Souza Mass Set Tuesday

A High Requiem Mass will be sunk Tuesday for Mrs. Mary Faustine Souza, 93, former Marin County resident who died in San Leandro yesterday after a long illness.

Mrs. Souza resided in Sausalito and San Rafael for 45 years until moving to San Leandro 20 years ago.

She was a native of the Azore Islands and came to the United States when she was 21 years old. Her husband, Jose Faustine Souza, a carpenter, died in 1949.

She was a member of SPRSI No. 29 of Sausalito.

She is survived by a son and daughter in San Rafael, Mrs. Lilian LeCornec and Anthony Faustine Souza, a daughter in San Leandro, Mrs. Mary Leah Mattos, a grandson, Lester Mattos and a great-granddaughter, Joyce Mattos.

The funeral cortege will leave the Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael, at 8 a.m. Tuesday and proceed to St. Raphael's Church where a high requiem mass will be sung at 9:30 a.m. Interment will be at Mt. Olivet Cemetery. The Rosary will be recited at the mortuary Monday at 8 p.m.

Parents Should Take Steps To Curb Youngsters' Disrespect

Mr. J.K.C. "My wife lets our son hit her when he is angry. He is 3. He doesn't actually hurt her, but he tries. She says he feels better for having hit her. Is she doing the right thing?"

Reply. No, she is not. Children have a basic need to respect their parents. Parents have an equally important need to be respected, so they can guide and direct their youngsters. You should not allow any serious disrespect at any time. There is trouble ahead for your wife and son.

Mrs. H.H. "I have four children. I thought that when they got into school I could relax. I was wrong. I take them to and from school in the car. I run errands for them all day. After school I'm forever carting them to meetings and lessons. I'm as busy as ever. Is this good?

Reply. Probably it is both good and bad. Many mothers are equally busy. They want to do a fine job of raising their children. They continue to be their youngsters' slaves, long after babyhood. But they overdo it. Children need the chance to be independent, develop responsibility, use their own initiative. Can your children get to and from school without riding in your car? Are there jobs they could do after school? Are their meetings and lessons really necessary? Cut down if you can. Probably they'll be better off.

Mrs. J.D. "Our girl is 4. She watched her cat have kittens, and asked many questions. She knows the facts of life already. Our neighbors think we're awful. Isn't it better to teach about reproduction early?"

Reply. Yes, it is. Little children can learn without undue emotions. Older ones may not be able to. Little ones acquire healthy attitudes easily. You are wiser than your neighbors.

Reed Trustees Face Decisions

Reed Union School District trustees will be faced with six decisions affecting the 1961-62 schol year at their Tuesday meeting at 8 p.m. in the Reed School multi-purpose room.

Supt. Paul R. Stouffer said trustees will decide number of rooms and teachers in the district, location of seventh and eighth grades, type of buses, employment of principal and clerks at the new Del Mar School, and type of furniture for the school.

Trustee David D. Ring will report on the proposed countywide tax legislation and the Strawberry boundary survey. District Psychologist Gloria Martin will discuss the current achievement testing program.

A report on arithmetic materials used in the district also will be given.

Attend Workshop

Five College of Marin faculty members attended a junior college workshop on improvement of instruction in mathematics and science today and yesterday at Stockton College. They are Lorna Blair, Paul T. Wilson, Berkeley Johnson, Stephen C. Bruff and Carlton E. Cherry.

FAMOUS CARVED OAK

Many Different Types Break Traffic Laws

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Roman Catholic priest, a beautiful young woman, and a "mixed-up" boy learned recently of the serious fault they shared in common.

The news came from California's Department of Motor Vehicles, which summoned each to separate interviews designed to determine why they were negligent drivers of automobiles.

Each appeared before one of the department's "Driver Analysts," who asked why they were receiving an abnormal number of traffic citations. Depending on the analyst's report, the department could revoke or suspend their licenses, or place them on probation.

Actually, the priest, the woman and the boy were receiving no special attention from the department, which interviews some 7,000 drivers a month as part of its driver improvement program.

Those interviewed include persons who have been convicted of four or more moving violations in 12 months, six or more in 24 months, and eight or more in 36 months.

But program manager Lloyd Bradley said that he had selected the priest, the woman and the boy as examples of "the most difficult types" that he and his 100 driver analysts must handle.

"These are the persons who don't want to believe that there's a dangerous pattern here. Instead of looking at the list of violations and realizing that something may be wrong, they argue about every one and tell you, for instance, that the police were wrong, or that they were victims of circumstances, or that they had to do what they did."

The priest, Bradley said, was convicted four times in one year for passing red lights or speeding.

"He told us that he had to do what he did because he was hurrying to administer last rites. But after looking at his earlier record, we decided that last rites or not this man would not keep his license," he said.

Bradley first saw the "beautiful young woman" while driving to Hollister to conduct an interview himself.

"She passed me on Highway 101 at 80 miles-an-hour in a gold-colored car," he said.

Bradley thought that he would never get to interview such a woman because "she could smile and talk any policeman out of a ticket."

But when he arrived in Hollister, he found the car outside the office and the woman inside waiting to be interviewed. He told her that he had seen her speeding and asked why she had done it.

"Gee, I didn't want to be late," he said she replied.

Military Pullout Will Open All Of Angel Island To Public

Angel Island, the historic piece of sandstone which rises 776 feet out of Racoon Straits, will soon have its 640 acres thrown open to the public.

The military is abandoning its installations, and contracts now under negotiation between the State of California and the federal government call for full title to the island to go to the State Division of Parks and Beaches.

How far in the future that day remains is a matter of government paperwork, but one thing is certain: some 220 acres of the island is now a state park, available to Marinites by private boat or public launch from Tiburon and Sausalito.

The open area is around Hospital Cove. There are picnic tables, cooking facilities, rest rooms, limited trails, boat mooring facilities. When the remainder is opened, visitors will be treading the paths of privateers and smugglers, sheepherders and cowboys, immigration officials and wandering immigrants, Indian War prisoners and garrison troops.

Since Don Juan de Ayala sailed into San Francisco Bay in 1775, landed the first vessel ever to touch shore within the bay and explored the area, the island has seen these characters in the human drama pour across the island.

In addition, it has served as a quarantine station, harbor defense post, port of embarkation and, now being abandoned, a missile base.

At North Garrison, which housed Italian and Japanese prisoners of World War II, the Army fights constantly with the jungle growth to keep the roads open to the old immigration station.

The foliage has already won the battle for historic West Garrison, where the last red-skinned prisoners of the Indian Wars died and where John Pershing and Douglas MacArthur served as junior officers.

The stone barracks, officers' homes and the warehouse which were constructed by order of Abraham Lincoln are silent and dead, but the parks department will eventually restore them as a tribute to old Fort McDowell.

In 1888, when Angel Island became the quarantine station for San Francisco, $103,000 was obtained from Congress to try to eliminate the diseases that filter into and through the large shipping ports. The structures built to house the station consisting of an administration building, detention barracks for approximately 500 persons, a hospital, disinfecting plant for clothing and bedding, a generating plant, a laboratory, quarters for officers and employees and appurtenant buildings. Many still remain.

Today, ancient Army buildings — some overgrown by subtropical vines and trees—stare vacant-eyed from West Garrison, a veritable ghost encampment looking toward San Francisco. North Garrison, 79 acres on Angel Island's north side, is a part of future plans. It, too, holds abandoned, semi-delapidated buildings from its days as a military station.

Angel Island's steep terrain is, in essence, a large block of sandstone of the type known to geologists as Franciscan sandstone. The largest mass of this stone occurs as an intrusive sheet or sill between layers of granite. The exposed edge of this sheet forms a horseshoe-shaped bank which is practically concentric with the crescent-like ridge surrounding Hospital Cove.

The rocky island was the scene of many duels before law came to the Bay Area. The most famous was in 1858 when State Senator William I. Ferguson died in a gun duel with George Penn Johnson over the slavery question. In far contrast to these duels and history, a modern Nike missile base has stood high atop this island mountain and a Coast Guard lighthouse station is at Point Knox.

Comparatively speaking, probably less fog and bad weather is experienced on the island than at any other coastal area. Most Marin boat owners state that Hospital Cove is one of the best protected and most beautiful harbors in the Bay. During winter months when hard southern storms hit the bay, boats of all sizes head for the cove for safe anchorage.

In the spring, the island wears a bright coat of flowers and shrubbery. Plant life consists of many non-native species, planted by gardeners at the quarantine station, and include acacia, eucalyptus (several varieties), Monterey cypress and pine, horsetail pine, bottle bush, madrone and pittosporum.

Of the native plants, there are California laurel, toyon, ceanothus of several varieties, coast live oak, and buckeye. Wildflowers abound since a showering of seeds several years ago by the San Francisco Wildflower Society.

Deer are frequently seen on the island. They were introduced in 1910 from a ranch in Sonoma County. Poisonous snakes have not been found, but garter and gopher snakes are quite numerous.

Bird life is abundant. Among the species are valley quail, hermit thrush, green-back goldfinch, house wren, Anna and Allen hummingbird, stellar jay, slender-billed nuthatch, great blue heron, American egret, brown pelican and western crow as well as many species of warblers, hawks, swallows, gulls, cormorants, ducks and scoters.

Archaeologically speaking, a good deal of evidence points to the fact that Angel Island was inhabited by Indians. The only known research was in 1908 when a reconnaisance survey discovered the remains of at least four large Indian shell-mounds. One of these mounds mounds. One of these mounds was found at the head of Hospital Cove and was destroyed in good part during the construction of the quarantine station.

One mound, located on another portion of the island, is still partially intact and may be seen. It is thought that the natives inhabiting the island were of the Coast Miwok people, since the adjoining mainland was inhabited by natives speaking the southern dialect of that tongue.

The highest point on the island has recently been named Mount Caroline S. Livermore in recognition of the work accomplished by this Marin County conservationist to retain Angel Island as a state park.

Freshman Program To Be Discussed At High School

Approximately 200 Vallecito School eighth grade students and their parents will meet with Terra Linda High School faculty members Monday night at Vallecito School to plan their freshman program for next year.

The program, held on an individual student basis, will begin at 7 p.m. with individual appointments scheduled throughout the evening.

Another purpose of the program, according to Gary Dunn, head counselor at Terra Linda High, is to help plan Terra Linda's educational program for next year.

Parents were requested by Dunn to outline a proposed four-year course with their children before the meetings with the faculty members.

Cosmetics Stolen At Marin Store

A burglar broke into the Marin City Drug Store and stole cosmetics, watches and cash, the store owner reported to the sheriff Thursday.

Frank Kelly of 32 Prospect Avenue, Sausalito, told Sgt. Guy V. Gibbs that $65 in cash was gone from the cash register. The thief also took three women's watches, cosmetics, lighter flints and fountain pens. Other valuables in the store were ignored.

Sergeant Gibbs said the burglar apparently climbed the roof of a cleaning establishment next door and crept in through the storeroom window of the drug store.

SCHOOL CHILDREN GET HISTORIC DOCUMENTS

Copies of the Declaration of Independence, printed on parchment-like paper in close duplication of the original and enclosed in binders giving historical facts, were presented to pupils at Santa Venetia School yesterday by the Marin Sertoma Club, a men's club devoted to "service to mankind," to mark "Sertoma's Freedom Week." J. E. Andreu, Mill Valley contractor and club chairman, presents copies to Mike Galvin and Jeanie Wallace. (Independent-Journal photo)

College Urged To Report On Student Drops

The College of Marin should report to the high schools what percentage of their graduates could not—on the basis of their academic records—be qualified as "status 1" students, college board chairman Elizabeth M. Deedy said Thursday night.

"Status 1" students are those who are premitted to enroll in any course if they meet prerequisites.

DUTY TO REPORT

Mrs. Deedy said this was a matter of information the college as a public school has a duty to report to the high schools. The information on numbers and percentages also should be made public, she said.

Mrs. Deedly's remarks came during discussion of a report on students who left the college before the end of the fall 1960 semester.

Dean of students Irwin P. Diamond reported there had been a 4 per cent reduction in dropouts from fall 1959 to fall 1960, although enrollment increased 10 per cent. Of the regular students, 40 per cent indicated they dropped out of college for financial and work reasons.

ABILITY DROPOUTS

Diamond noted, however, that of those leaving, 57 per cent were considered disqualified or scholarship deficient. He also reported a relatively high percentage—49 per cent—of all dropouts are students with college academic ability.

Mrs. Deedy commented that with more qualified and capable counselors the school could begin to learn earlier about a student's aptitude and plan a program for him. She felt ways should be explored to aid students who drop out for financial reasons.

The situation "cries for real improved counseling. We are wasting a great many good students," Mrs. Deedy said.

LONGER LIFE PREDICTED BY MEDICAL GROUP

CHICAGO (UPI) — Americans may live as long as the fabled Hunzukuts of Northern Pakistan during the 21st Century, the American Medical Assn. said today.

There is evidence that men in Hunza, a remote region in the Himalayan mountains, live to be 120 or even 140 years old, the AMA said in its current journal. Although the Hunzukuts can't produce birth certificates to prove their reputed longevity, such ages are believed possible, the AMA said.

Life expectancy has steadily increased in the West, and may approach 120 years by the end of this century, the AMA said.

Firemen, Auxiliary Plan Installation Tonight

About 150 members of the Marin County Assn. of Fire Departments and its auxiliary will gather for an installation dinner at the Corte Madera Recreation Center at 8 p.m. today.

Robert Kearney, a captain in the Berkeley Fire Department and president of the California State Firemen's Assn., will install the county officers. Mrs. Kearney, state president of the auxiliary, will install the local women.

New officers of the Marin organization are William White of Corte Madera, president; William Lieb of Novato, first vice president; W. L. Williams of Kentfield, second president; Herb Lane of Fairfax, secretary; Anthony Schunk of San Rafael, treasurer; Max Robinson of Sausalito, sergeant-at-arms; A. L. Olsen of Tiburon, property clerk. Jean Lestanguet of Fairfax is the outgoing president.

New auxiliary officers are Mrs. Claire Harder of Larkspur, outgoing president who will be installed as junior president; Mrs. Peter Milani of San Anselmo, president; Mrs. George Schaefer of San Rafael, vice president; Mrs. Edward Peterson of Larkspur, secretary; Mrs. Richard Meagor of San Anselmo, treasurer; Mrs. George Bartram of Larkspur, Mrs. Bill Leonard of Fairfax, Mrs. Claire Harder of Larkspur and Mrs. Arthur Wedemeyer of Larkspur, trustees. Mrs. Donald Denton of Larkspur is chairman for the auxiliary installation.

A cocktail party from 7 to 8 o'clock will precede a buffet supper, and dancing will follow.

Mill Valleyan Opens Tiburon Realty Firm

The North Bay Realty Co., owned by Van R. Peterson, has opened offices at 1610 Tiburon Boulevard in Tiburon for the purpose of general real estate brokerage services.

Peterson, a Mill Valley resident, has been a broker in Marin County seven years.

Board To Hear Appeal On Cost Of Construction

Appeal will be made to the Marin County Board of Supervisors Monday to take whatever administrative measures may be possible to ease costs of construction in Marin.

This will be contained in a letter from the Marin County Labor Council, which recently contended that home costs in Marin were driving union labor to live elsewhere. The supervisors asked for a survey by the Marin Industrial Development Foundation which came in with a report supporting the labor theory, and blaming, in part, inspection and other official responsibilities.

County Administrator Alan Bruce will ask the supervisors to authorize a Marin County exhibit at the 1961 state fair and to provide repetition of last year's "live program" with turntable theater, as well as one set display stressing recreation.

Bruce will ask authority to negotiate with the Marin Visitors Bureau to take main responsibility, with an advisory committee to help.

Only letters are scheduled for the Monday afternoon session starting at 2 p.m. but special subjects are likely to intrude.

Novato Truck Driver Found Innocent Of Attack Attempt

Joseph Andrew York, 33-year-old Novato truck driver, was found innocent yesterday of attempting to rape a 49-year-old secretary, but convicted him of simple assault against the woman.

A jury of six men and six women deliberated for about two hours yesterday afternoon before reaching their verdict.

Dist. Atty. Roger P. Garety asked Judge Thomas F. Keating of Marin Superior Court that proceedings be started to examine York to see if he is a sexual psychopath. The judge set 11:45 a.m. Monday to consider the motion.

Simple assault is punishable by $500 fine, six months in jail, or both.

York's attorney, Albert E. Bagshaw, argued that York did not have the intent to rape because he blacked out from drinking and does not know what happened.

Mill Valleyans End Reserve Police Course

Fifteen Mill Valleyans completed two weeks training Thursday for the re-activated police reserve and will start duties March 1, working eight hours a month with the regular police force.

Prior to the training session, the reserve force consisted of 60 men who had served since World War II under civil defense for emergency purposes and had not been required to put in any fixed amount of actual police duty.

The reservists were trained by officer Dan Terzich, and assisted by Capt. Joe Canet. They will be given caps, jackets and badges by the city, according to police chief James P. McGowan. They will provide their own pistols and handcuffs.

Their hours will be divided into two four-hour shifts, one every two weeks. They will have all powers of a police officer when on duty but they will not be paid.

Philip Planert was elected captain by the reserves.

Bolinas Harbor Report Presented

Bolinas Harbor Distrilct commissioners received a 32-page report Thursday from Stone and Youngberg, San Francisco financing consultant firm, on the "procedure to obtain harbor improvement."

The report, according to commissioner John B. Lowe of Bolinas, will be studied and discussed at the March 23 meeting.

A feasibility survey made by John A. Blume Associates, district engineers, was approved by the commission Jan. 27 and set to Rep. Clement W. Miller (D-Corte Madera) to be presented to the House Rivers and Harbors Committee.

Both report and the survey are required, Lowe said, to obtain federal funds for developing a small craft harbor in Bolinas Lagoon.

INCOME TAX FACTS

Some Credit Is Due During Retirement

By PETER J. WIKEL, CPA

If you are 65 years of age or over, or if you are under 65 years of age but retired under a public retirement system, such as firemen, policemen, teachers, federal employees, member of the armed forces, etc. then your retirement income is subject to a tax credit which can be as much as $240. ($480 on a joint return).

Peter J. Wikel

To qualify for the credit, you or your deceased spouse must have earned an income, not counting pensions or annuities, of at least $600 in any 10 previous years.

The credit is applicable only to the first $1,200 of retirement income included in gross income. Tax exempt income is not included in gross income. Your retirement income would be interest, gross rents, taxable dividends and taxable pensions and annuities.

If you are under 65 years of age, any income from personal services in excess of $900 or if you are between 65 and 72 years of age any income from personal service in excess of $1,200 would reduce your retirement income for the purpose of computing the credit.

The credit cannot be for more than the total tax due and so result in a refund claim.

If you are over 65 years old, then you are also entitled to the extra personal exemption for over 65. In the case of a married couple both over 65 years of age, this could result in personal exemptions of $2,400 and retirement income credits of $480 covering $2,400 in retirement income, so that the couple could have tax free income of $4,800.

Drunken Drivers Draw $210 Fines

Two drunken drivers were fined $210 each and put on six months probation Thursday by Judge Joseph G. Wilson in Marin Municipal Court.

Norman Louis Haunstetter, 30, of 195 Melville Avenue, San Anselmo, was caught on Feb. 3 at Third and E Streets in San Rafael.

Dorothy Elizabeth Mills, 44, of 201 Eldridge Avenue, Mill Valley, was arrested last Nov. 30 on Tiburon Boulevard. For 90 days, she may not drive at all. A jury convicted her of drunken driving on Feb. 3.

Employee Law Due Review By Hub Board

Clarification of San Anselmo's civil service ordinance was the topic of a meeting of the San Anselmo Board of Review Thursday night.

The five-man board met for the first time in two years at the request of Mayor William Franchini. It was established under the civil serice ordinance to hear grievances from employees.

Members decided to study the ordinance and clarify it so that both the council and city employees will know how binding the ordinance is and who it applies to, according to board member Laurie Antolini.

They also asked that efficiency reports be filed with the board in accordance with the ordinance. The board decided to meet every fourth month, but did not specify a date. The mayor suggested they meet with the council sometime in the future to review the civil service ordinance.

Meeting Planned For Marin City Recreation Setup

A special meeting will be held next week by the Marin City Community Services District to set up a recreation commission for Marin City, chairman Harrison N. Bailey said today. No date was set for the meeting.

Recommendation for the commission came from James Quiett, treasurer of the Marin City Tenants Council, at last night's meeting of the district board. All members of the community services district board favored formation of a commission.

The board's public meeting heard speeches by Jesse E. Berry, district treasurer, on the "past, present and future of Marin City Recreation"; by Dr. Theodore Kohler, San Francisco State College recreation director, on "Philosophy of Recreation"; by Joseph D. Rodota, San Rafael director of recreation, on "Development of a City Recreation Program" and by Florence T. Scott, executive director of the Marin Council of Community Services.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Marin Farms Produce More Than Just A Few Cows

Many Marinites are surprised when they are told that their county is one of the leading dairy counties in the state.

Those of us who are more or less oriented in the life of a metropolitan community and its fringes, sometimes forget that just over that hill is a Marin County industry which is producing the same type of men and products which make us proud of Marinites in other fields of endeavor.

For example, Alfred J. Bianchi of Pt. Reyes Station is the California Farmer of the Year, selected at the California Farm Bureau Federation's annual convention last November. He's a dairyman. To those of us who see the dairy industry only as a few cows visible on the barren slopes of the West Marin hills, it seems amazing that a Marin County dairyman could obtain such recognition that he would be named to such an honor. But he was, and we're proud of him.

But that's only part of it. Marin County has an active, interested County Farm Bureau. It held its annual meeting this week in the West Marin School. There weren't even enough seats to go around.

The Marin bureau won praise from state officers for cooperation and activity. Specifically, a cup was presented to the unit for being the first of the 53 county bureaus in the state to exceed its membership quota. Its quota was 355 members at $20 per membership. That's no easy task even in a much more heavily populated farm district than Marin.

And, too, the Marin farmers and ranchers were praised by their state officials for an inovation in the legislative field. Not only does the bureau hold "candidates nights," so the farm voters can meet political aspirants, but after the election, the bureau holds "legislators nights" in which to talk with their elected representative about their problems.

The state officers wished other farm bureaus would adopt the procedure. We think it would be helpful if many organizations did the same thing.

As you can see then, Marin's farm community is a living, vital thing. We hail Farm Bureau President Donald J. McIsaac and all the members and urge them to keep up the good work.

Research Funds Help At Home

Sometimes when a health organization asks for contributions to research, the appeal leaves us unmoved because it seems so far away, so removed from the things that are going on here in Marin.

Sometimes it helps us to see research in better perspective when we realize that part of our money is going to neighbors who are actually doing the research.

Take, for example, contributions to the Marin County Heart Assn. Your donations are split between research to control and cure this greatest of all killers, education of physicians in the latest developments and the public in what they can do to protect their own hearts, and for community heart services, services given in Marin to Marin heart sufferers and to the schools' physiology classes.

But back to research. Heart research funds have been and are being furnished Dr. Rutherford S. Gilfillan of Mill Valley for his studies in blood flow, and to Dr. Meyer Freidman of Sausalito for his research into problems of stress.

So you see, contributions to heart aren't being lost in the anonymity of some eastern laboratory. They are helping right here in Marin.

Tomorrow some 1,900 local volunteers are making a two-hour canvass of Marin homes. We hope you'll be home and in a generous mood.

Bouquets And Brickbats

A BIG BOUQUET to Henry Fostine, retiring street supervisor of Mill Valley, who has put in 43½ years of dedicated work to the City of Mill Valley, its residents and visitors. A lengthy job well done.

A BRICKBAT to an unidentified man who, when a young boy got him on the telephone through a wrong number, told the boy his mother had been killed in an automobile crash and put the boy in a state of near hysteria.

A BOUQUET to an unidentified driver of a Volkswagen bus. Last week a harried motorist ran out of gas in the fast lane of the Waldo Grade during rush hour. The VW driver jumped out of his car with a gallon of gas, poured it in the stalled car and had the bottleneck broken before a serious accident occurred. The California Highway Patrol joins us in throwing this bouquet.

A BOUQUET to Patrick (Butch) Hallinan of Ross for an outstanding job and for winning two first place awards in the moot court activities of San Francisco's Hastings Law College.

BRICKBATS to all concerned in trying to rent advertising on San Rafael's 19 bus-stop benches at 50 cents per bench per month. If the city's THAT hard up, maybe more could be made by putting billboards on City Hall.

A BOUQUET to visiting artist John Davis for his free San Rafael Fifth Street display of 22 oil paintings of old missions including the one preceding nearby St. Raphael's Church.

FOUR DIFFERENT PLANS

Election Reform Would Have Changed Results

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — Every time there is a close presidential election, proposals to reform the electoral system are made. Like President Kennedy, most experts don't give the reform proposals much chance.

The close election won by John F. Kennedy last November might have been closer still under any of the major proposals.

Congressional Quarterly computed the votes cast in the presidential election using four major alternative schemes—direct popular vote, proportional division of each state's electoral votes, election of presidential electors by districts, and a compromise plan proposed in 1956 by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.).

ONE TROUBLE with superimposing the 1960 vote upon these proposals is that any other system would result in different voting behavior by the electorate. Another lies in the complicated Alabama situation, where more than 300,000 people voted for 11 electors, only five of whom were committed to Kennedy. The other six electors were "unpledged" and later cast their votes for Sen. Harry Flood Byrd (D, Va.).

This Alabama dilemma is significant because, using the 318,303 votes for the highest Kennedy electors as full-fledged votes, the President is credited with a slight nationwide majority in the 1960 election: Kennedy, 34,221,463; Nixon, 34,108,582; Byrd, 609,860; others, 216,953.

In computing the direct popular vote for purposes of this election reform study, CQ arbitrarily divided the Democratic popular vote in that state, giving 5/11ths to President Kennedy and 6/11ths to Byrd—based on the fact that after the popular vote was cast, the five Kennedy electors stayed with their candidate, while the six unpledged electors voted for Byrd. This division would give Nixon a 57,851 national vote plurality in 1960, as follows: Nixon, 34,108,582; Kennedy, 34,050,523; Byrd, 462,575; others, 216,953.

SENATE MAJORITY Leader Mike Mansfield (D, Mont.) and Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R, Maine) are among the members of Congress who favor election of a President by direct popular vote. Mrs. Smith's proposed reform would require a runoff election if no candidate received a majority, which was the case in 1960.

Under the current electoral college system, the candidate who wins a majority of the votes in a state usually receives all its electoral votes. The result in 1960 was: Kennedy, 303; Nixon, 219; Byrd, 15. In "one-party" states, many people don't bother voting, assuming their votes would be worthless.

Another major proposed reform, supported in past years by former Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge (R, Mass.) and currently by Sen. Estes Kefauver (D, Tenn.), would divide each state's electoral vote proportionately to the popular votes cast in the state. In 1950 and again in 1956, a majority of the Senate voted for a proportional-method proposal.

Applying the proportional method to the 1960 presidential voting with the division of Alabama noted above, the result would give Nixon a margin of less than half an electoral vote: Nixon 266.075 electoral votes, Kennedy 265.623, Byrd 3.608, minor parties 1.692.

HISTORICAL RECORDS show that the framers of the Constitution never anticipated that the "winner-take-all" system would be used in casting each state's electoral votes. A more popular system in the early years of the Republic was election of presidential electors from districts, similar to congressional districts.

The district system has been proposed as a constitutional amendment by Sen. Karl Mundt (R. S.D.) and other members of Congress. Mundt's amendment would require that the new elector districts be composed of continguous and compact territory with population as nearly equal as possible. It is hard to tell what the result of an election from such districts would have been in 1960, but using the currently constituted (and sometimes gerrymandered) congressional districts, the result is: Nixon 279 electoral votes, Kennedy 244, Byrd 14.

In 1956, Senator Humphrey proposed a compromise plan by which the winner of the popular vote in each state would receive two electoral votes, with the remaining bloc of 435 electoral votes nationwide divided proportionately according to the national popular vote. In 1960 Nixon carried 26 states, Kennedy 22, giving Nixon a decisive advantage under the Humphrey plan. The result: Nixon 268.526 electoral votes, Kennedy 260.159, Byrd 6.936 and minor parties 1.377.

FOURTEEN TIMES since the founding of the U.S., a President has been chosen who did not receive a majority of the popular votes, the CQ survey showed.

Institution of a direct national vote for President would be the only way to insure that the popular vote winner would not lose in the electoral college.

The Country Parson

"I think I've seen more folks make wrong decisions because they were angry than because of ignorance."

Is S.F. Solon Seeking Our Congress Seat?

By CHAPIN A. DAY

CHIP DAY

There has been a lull in Marin Republicans' search for a congressional candidate for the election next year. The reason is they're waiting to see what happens in the reapportionment of the state's congressional district.

Will Marin still be in the First Congressional District and its congressman Clement W. Miller? Or will Marin be put in some other district and Miller moving his Corte Madera home to some other county so he can still represent the First District?

Rumors, however, that others are watching the redistricting for the same purpose, but with different motives. For example, there are those who say San Francisco Assemblyman John A. Busterud is casting his eye across the Golden Gate.

Everyone, including Busterud, expects that he will be reapportioned out of an Assembly seat. San Francisco is going to lose one Assembly district and Republican Busterud is practical enough to know that he's probably had it. The Democrats are in full command of the reapportionment.

Of course no one is saying anything, yet. But if after the reapportionment Marin is left in the First District, watch Busterud's home address. If he moves to San Rafael, or perhaps Santa Rosa, Representative Miller has an opponent off and running.

Sen. Hugh Burns has introduced in the Senate a bill creating a new Fifth Appellate District in the state courts system, and a new appellate judgeship.

Most of the legislators apparently assume it will pass. Not only that, they also are assuming they know whom Gov. Edmund G. Brown will appoint to the new bench. It's Ralph M. Brown, speaker of the Assembly. In fact, they're calling Ralph "Judge" around the Capitol corridors.

That leaves a big question mark. Who's going to be speaker—and when? Speaker Pro Tempore Carlos Bee of Hayward is one contender. Gordon H. Winton of Merced is another. Both of them have joked half seriously with the Freshmen legislators.

Jesse M. Unruh of Los Angeles, the steamroller of the lower house, is using his usual tactics of brute strength to get across the idea he expects the job — or else. Little or nothing has been heard yet, but it will, of Augustus F. Hawkins of Los Angeles, very popular with his Southland associates.

Republicans are sitting back and watching the battle with interest. If there is a real battle among the Democrats, the Republicans will have a major say in who gets the powerful speakership. They won't be able to elect one of their own, but they can get concessions in putting in a winner.

When? That will be up to the governor. It is almost inconceivable he'd appoint during this session, even if the bill were made an emergency measure and effective immediately. It seems unlikely either he'd delay until after the budget session next March, although he could. Delaying that long would undo all the work of the candidates, for there wouldn't be anything for a speaker to preside over until after the next election. But more likely he'd make the appointment next winter. Then filling the vacancy would be vital for a speaker can make or break a governor's program by his committee assignments. And 1962 will be an election year for the governor.

MARIN SENATOR John F. McCarthy has been selected to introduce the bill establishing a Golden Gate Transportation Commission in lieu of a Golden Gate Authority. It wasn't an easy selection.

Although McCarthy introduced the first authority bill and was responsible for the interim study of the idea, proponents worried because he's a Republican in a Democratic legislature. They finally gave

The Freedom Academy Bill, extolled in your editorial of Feb. 21, is another creation of those in our Congress who are still dumbly proceeding in international affairs along 1947 policy lines—impervious to the fact that the world in 1961 is unrecognizable to the one they still try to cope with. They do not seem aware that the bi-polar world ended with the emergence of China and the free African states.

This nonsense commission —suspect by its very name "Freedom Commission" — is another death-rattle, it is hoped, of those in Washington without the courage, the spirit or the wisdom to meet the new and urgent international problems this country now faces.

At least most of our statesmen admit with the rest of the world that the only country in the world that could survive an atomic war is China — Russia's next door neighbor. What does that prime factor in world affairs do to the Cold War fantasy, now a tedious obsolescence!

It there no one to tell these bumbling Don Quixotes, tilting with their Cold War windmill, that for the rest of the world the heat's on?

Nice Weather Means More Work For Law Enforcement People

We begin heading for the parks, beaches and wide open spaces. Everything looks rosier, except for the income tax deadline and a few bills piling up.

But for those in law enforcement, it's the reverse. Balmy weather means more work, especially on weekends when cars clog the roads and playful crowds clutter the beaches.

FOR DEPUTY SHERIFF Ray von Savoye, the season started off with a bang He took off his jacket, rolled up his sleeves and crawled down a 400-foot cliff to help an injured fisherman.

With the mission accomplished, he came back up to his car to find his jacket ripped and trampled in the mud. Some wise guy probably thought he was being cute, messing up the uniform.

Some day, if this guy finds himself lying helpless at the bottom of the cliff, wouldn't it be ironic if the officer decided he'd better guard his squad car and personal property and to heck with the fellow down there.

IT WAS JUST ABOUT closing time, and sheriff's matrons were discussing the quality of candy in the office vending machine. Just as two prim ladies stepped out of the elevator, they heard Matron Dora Farley proclaim:

"The lovenests around here are getting awfully stale these days!"

NEW DEPUTY D. A. Thomas Tone Storer got his middle name from Irish rebel Wolfe Tone.

Seems he's descended from the famed rebel leader on his father's side.

IF YOU DON'T want to offend the mailman, you may comment on the big load he has, but never refer to the mail pouch when he has a light load.

It seems that in the afternoons when the load is light, people stop them and chirp: "Light load, eh?"

And in the mornings when they're groaning under the weight, nobody even looks at them.

JIM DAL BON of 78 Sea Way, San Rafael, doesn't have to watch TV to meet big personalities. Just the other day, Bing Crosby and Kathy walked into Dal Bon's general store in Squaw Valley.

Bing paid for $30 worth of groceries with a $100 bill.

A customer walks up to Bing and says, "Say, anyone tell you you look something like Bing Crosby?"

"Yea, lots of people tell me that," the crooner smiled as he pushed the grocery cart.

BEN K. RIPPE of 525 Chapman Drive, Corte Madera, takes his jury summons seriously. He wrote County Clerk Geo. Jones he'd be happy to serve just so they paid him his transportation expense.

Jones politely excused the man. Rippe's letter of acceptance came from Abadan, South Iran, where he is now stationed. He noted that it would cost about $2,500 each way to fly back and forth to the Marin court.

Deaths Prove Highway 1 Unsafe

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

It is with sadness that I bring to your attention the recent deaths and injuries caused by the state of California Scenic Highway No. 1 from Tamalpais Jct. to Stinson Beach.

I hiked over this road more than 40 years ago when horses and buggies were the style. It is still the same crooked road of the past.

Many people are afraid to use the road, others get car sick and the ones that have to use the road hold their breath at each turn.

We resent having people who have freeways from their home to the cities, those who don't pay taxes or even live in Marin County, tell the majority of property owners what kind of a road should be built. We have a rightful share of tax monies for roads.

Now is the time to build the road. Unemployment is at its highest. Don't wait for a few more deaths before you call it unsafe.

If Highway 1 was a private road, the owners would be made to put guard rails to protect the public.

YOUR WEEKEND QUIZ

By CONGRESSIONAL QUARTERLY

FOOD FOR PEACE

Q—At present, the United States ships some (a) $200 million; (b) $2 billion; (c) $4 billion a year in surplus foods overseas.

A—(b) Food is distributed mainly through special government channels.

Q—Opponents of President Kennedy's "food for peace" proposals have objected to them on two of the three following grounds. Which objection has not been raised? (a) increased shipments would harm private exporters; (b) international trade patterns would be disrupted; (c) needy Americans would be deprived of food.

A—(c). Stored food is available in stockpiles to aid needy Americans, and Kennedy has recommended utilization of it through a food stamp program.

Q—True or False: President Kennedy Dec. 15 appointed former Minnesota Gov. Orville L. Freeman as director of the "food for peace" program?

A—False. Former Rep. George S. McGovern (D, S.D. 1957-61) was selected as program director. Freeman is Secretary of Agriculture.

Marin's Ann Halprin Causes Stir In Visit To Neighbor To The North

ANN HALPRIN, dancer and instructor with the Marin Dance Cooperative, has returned from a trip north of the border where she played a leading part in a Festival of Contemporary Arts held at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver.

The festival was the brainchild of the university's fine arts department faculty and students, planned to enliven those mid-winter days and nights which can be pretty cold and snowy in B.C.

Virtually all the contemporary arts were represented in performances, lectures, panel discussions, etc., during the week-long event. But apparently it was the contribution of Miss Halprin on behalf of the modern dance that caused the greatest stir.

The public had been given ample advance notice that this was likely to be so.

Writing on the eve of the opening of the festival, Francean Campbell, music editor of the Vancouver Province, observed:

"Among the week's avant garde doings, possibly the most startling will be furnished by a dancer from Marin County near San Francisco. Ann Halprin has never been known to give a dull concert, and has long been counted on for fresh, original ideas, and, as a lecturer and teacher, for powerful and influential opinions.

"Ann Halprin has been a professional dancer of many years . . . "

During the festival the Marin dancer made three appearances.

She and her company first gave a lecture-demonstration on "the use of the spoken word and dance." The following day she lectured on dance composition and gave another performance. And on the closing day of the festival, she conducted a workshop on creative dance for children.

After her initial festival appearance on the link between the spoken word and the dance, the same writer had this to say:

"Dancers from the outside world have come and gone, some have stayed long enough to talk about their art, to explain their objectives, and to open new doors on the subject. A few have left behind them some rich food for thought. Far fewer have made the impact that Ann Halprin is making on this visit.

ANN HALPRIN
She stole the show

"Miss Halprin is unquestionably an innovator. The subject of dance and the spoken word has been considered by most modern dancers both privately and publicly. But Ann Halprin's approach to it is new and her own.

"In essence the approach is one of complete freedom, of the independence of the dancer, of his awareness of himself, and, above all, of his individuality."

The title of Miss Halprin's new dance work which she performed at the festival intrigued the reviewer as it did us.

The title — "The Flowerburger."

Just another indication, apparently, of the originality that has brought Miss Halprin to the attention of dance enthusiasts in an area that extends far beyond the confines of Marin and even across the borders of this country.

40 Years Of Feeding Hungry Marinites

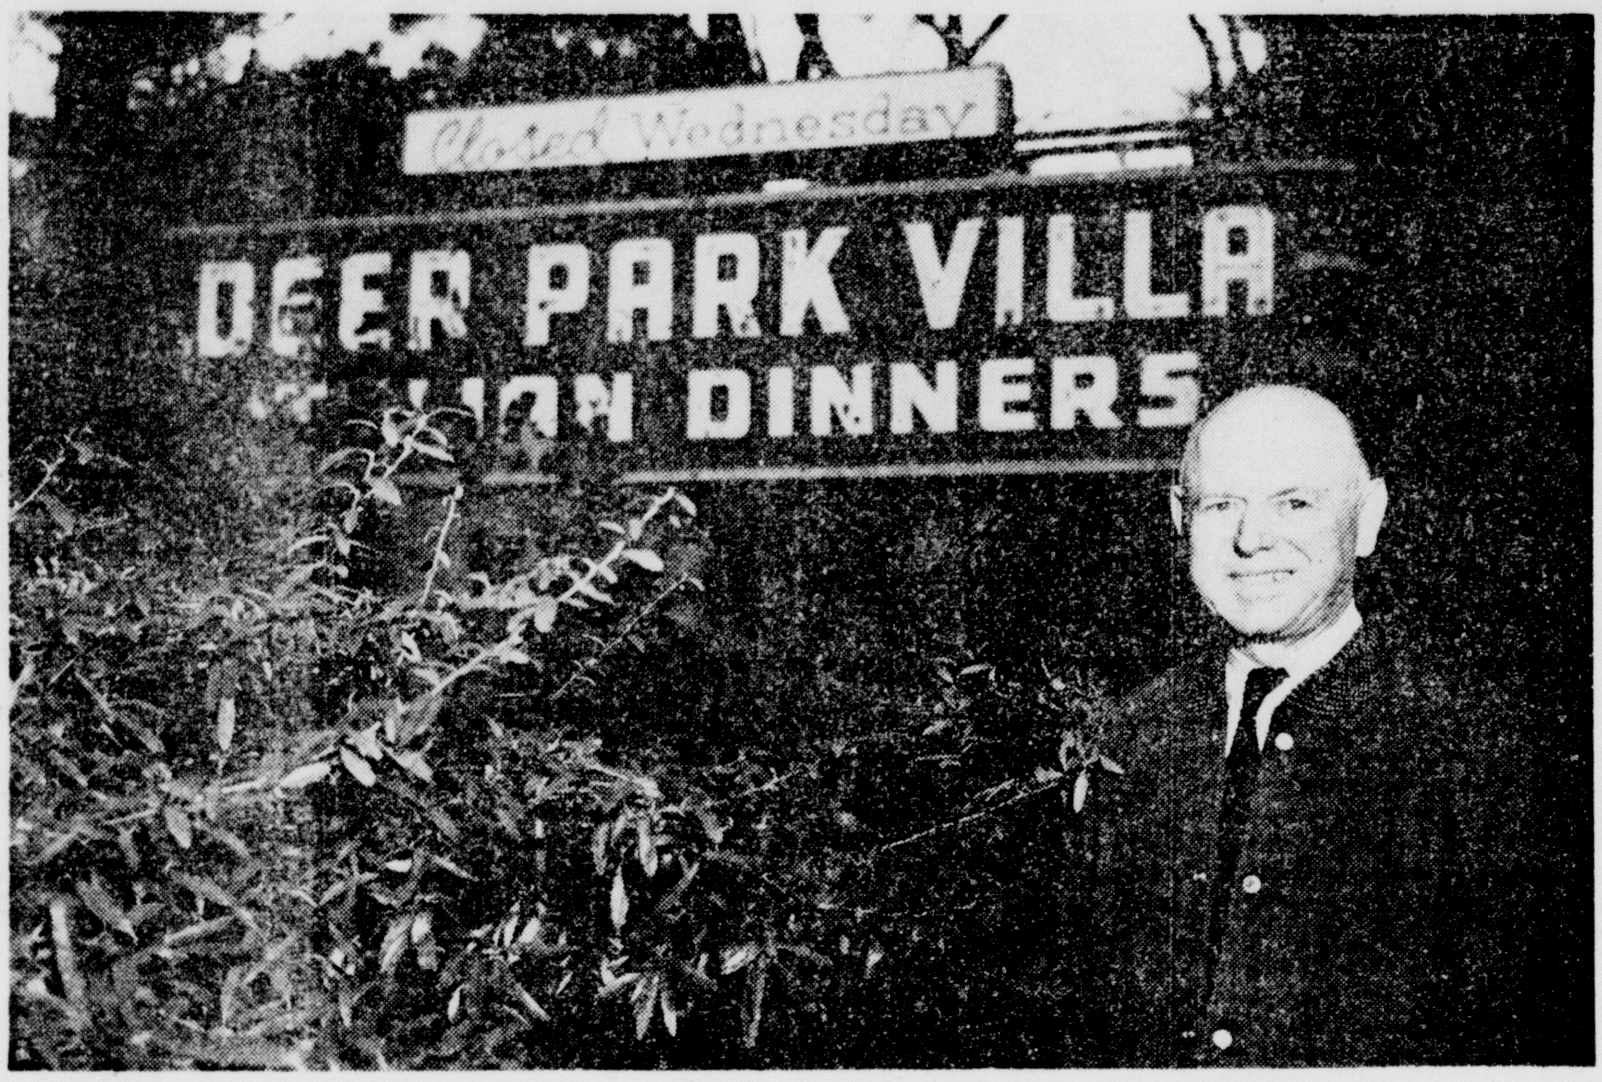
Ghiringhelli Means Good Italian Eating

By HARRY CRAFT

The man who may very well be the dean of restaurant men in Marin County celebrated his 65th birthday this month in a small, well-kept house on the grounds of Deer Park Villa, Fairfax, just across the main driveway from the dinery that has long been known for its fine Italian food.

Next month he will have occasion to celebrate again, for March will mark the end of his 40th year in Marin restaurant circles.

Joe Ghiringhelli today may not have the same capacity for hard work that he did in 1921 when he first leased the old Union Hotel at Fourth Street and Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, but it is a fact he finds hard to acknowledge.



JOE GHIRINGHELLI stands near the entrance of the Deer Park Villa, Fairfax, which he bought from Dan Celani in 1937 and made into one of Marin County's best known Italian dineries. Ghiringhelli enters his 41st year as a restaurant man next month. He first started in business in the old Union Hotel in San Rafael in 1921. (Independent-Journal photo)

THE LAST time I saw Joe was on a bitterly cold day in January. It was on the Deer Park grounds which cover some four acres of enormous oaks and elms, shrubs and gardens. They are a beautiful setting for the Villa during the spring, summer and fall months, but now there was a maze of marasmic growth that needed trimming and cleaning out.

Joe was bundled in a heavy wool jacket and woodsman's cap and had filled the paths with huge piles of rubble. His blue eyes had a sparkle and his skin, ordinarily pale with that translucent quality which often shows on men who have spent most of their time indoors, held a warm glow.

He looked healthy enough but it was hardly the time and place, I thought, for a man whom I had found sick in bed only 10 days before to be working so vigorously.

"You want the job?" he asked when I expressed concern. "I'll give it to anybody who'll take it."

I didn't, and he went stubbornly back to tugging and cutting with the attitude that someone had to do it and the subject was not worth discussing further.

Joe Ghiringhelli came to San Francisco from Capornno, Italy, with his uncle Serafino almost a half-century ago. Having no English was not a serious drawback in that day. San Francisco was filled with his countrymen, many of whom had restaurants and other businesses from Columbus Avenue to the outer reaches of the Mission.

JOE'S FATHER had been a land holder in Italy and the boy was used to hard labor. For a time he went to school to learn the language and did odd jobs for his uncle who had bought the old Europa Hotel. Later he got other work in restaurants as dishwasher, kitchen helper and cook and paid back the expense of his passage.

A trip to Kenwood in Sonoma County one day renewed Joe's acquaintance with the Pagani family whom he had known in Italy and who had come to this country several years before. There was a daughter, Antoinette, but she was only 11 then—too young to be considered romantically though he must have recognized that the situation held future possibilities.

"Grow up a little," he told her loftily, "and some day I'll come back and marry you."

During the next few years Antoinette did mature into an attractive young woman and she moved to San Francisco to work for her uncle Henry Besozzi who owned the Fly Trap Restaurant. At that time it was located at Sutter and Montgomery Streets and had already gained an enviable reputation in eating circles for its sumptuous Italian meals prepared by skillful Italian chefs.

Antoinette became cashier and it was here that Joe met her again, eventually going to work there as busboy then waiter, presumably more attracted by the dark-eyed girl's presence than he is willing to admit in relating the story.

WE DO KNOW that when the two started going together it was somewhat surreptitiously, for Uncle Henry had different ideas for his niece's future. There was a capable young Italian chef on his staff whose permanency might be assured through a family alliance. Good chefs, it seems, were hard to come by—even then.

Antoinette recalls that Joe was already a good cook and he made a capable enough busboy, but as a waiter there was considerable room for improvement. He took malicious delight in calling for certain dishes by their colloquial Italian names with which she and some of the others who had grown up in this country were unfamiliar.

And Joe himself admits that he cared litlte for waiting tables. He was inherently shy and proud, and any maneuvering toward securing tips for his services was distasteful. He felt that it was a manner of begging. But he stayed with the job.

At one point in his early restaurant career he had worked temporarily at the old Pastori restaurant in Fairfax and had become familiar with Marin County. It was, he thought, a place to keep under surveillance for business opportunities and he made occasional trips to Marin from time to time to look over the field.

HIS CHANCE came in 1921 when he learned that the Union Hotel in San Rafael was available for leasing. It was probably not a spot that would have impressed Duncan Hines for his later work "Lodging for a Night." Combined hostelry, restaurant and bar, it was a place to go and that was about the size of it. But Joe was now 25 and time was wasting. He left San Francisco and struck out on his own.

He operated it for three years and did fairly well, but even here there were limitations. Joe saw advantages in being a property owner rather than a lessee.

In 1924 opportunity knocked again. Across the tracks and on the opposite side of Fourth Street stood the old Tamalpais Hotel. It was not as large as the Union but it was for sale.

Property values in San Rafael were not skyrocketing but the deal was too large for Joe to handle alone. He interested his older brother Carlo and an uncle Ambrose Ghiringhelli in joining him in the venture. Success rewarded their combined efforts.

Meanwhile, romance between Antoinette Pagani and Joe had not expired because of his move to San Rafael.

Helping The Child To Read

By LARINE O'BRIEN BROWN

"You haven't seen a handicapped child until you see one who cannot read at his grade level."

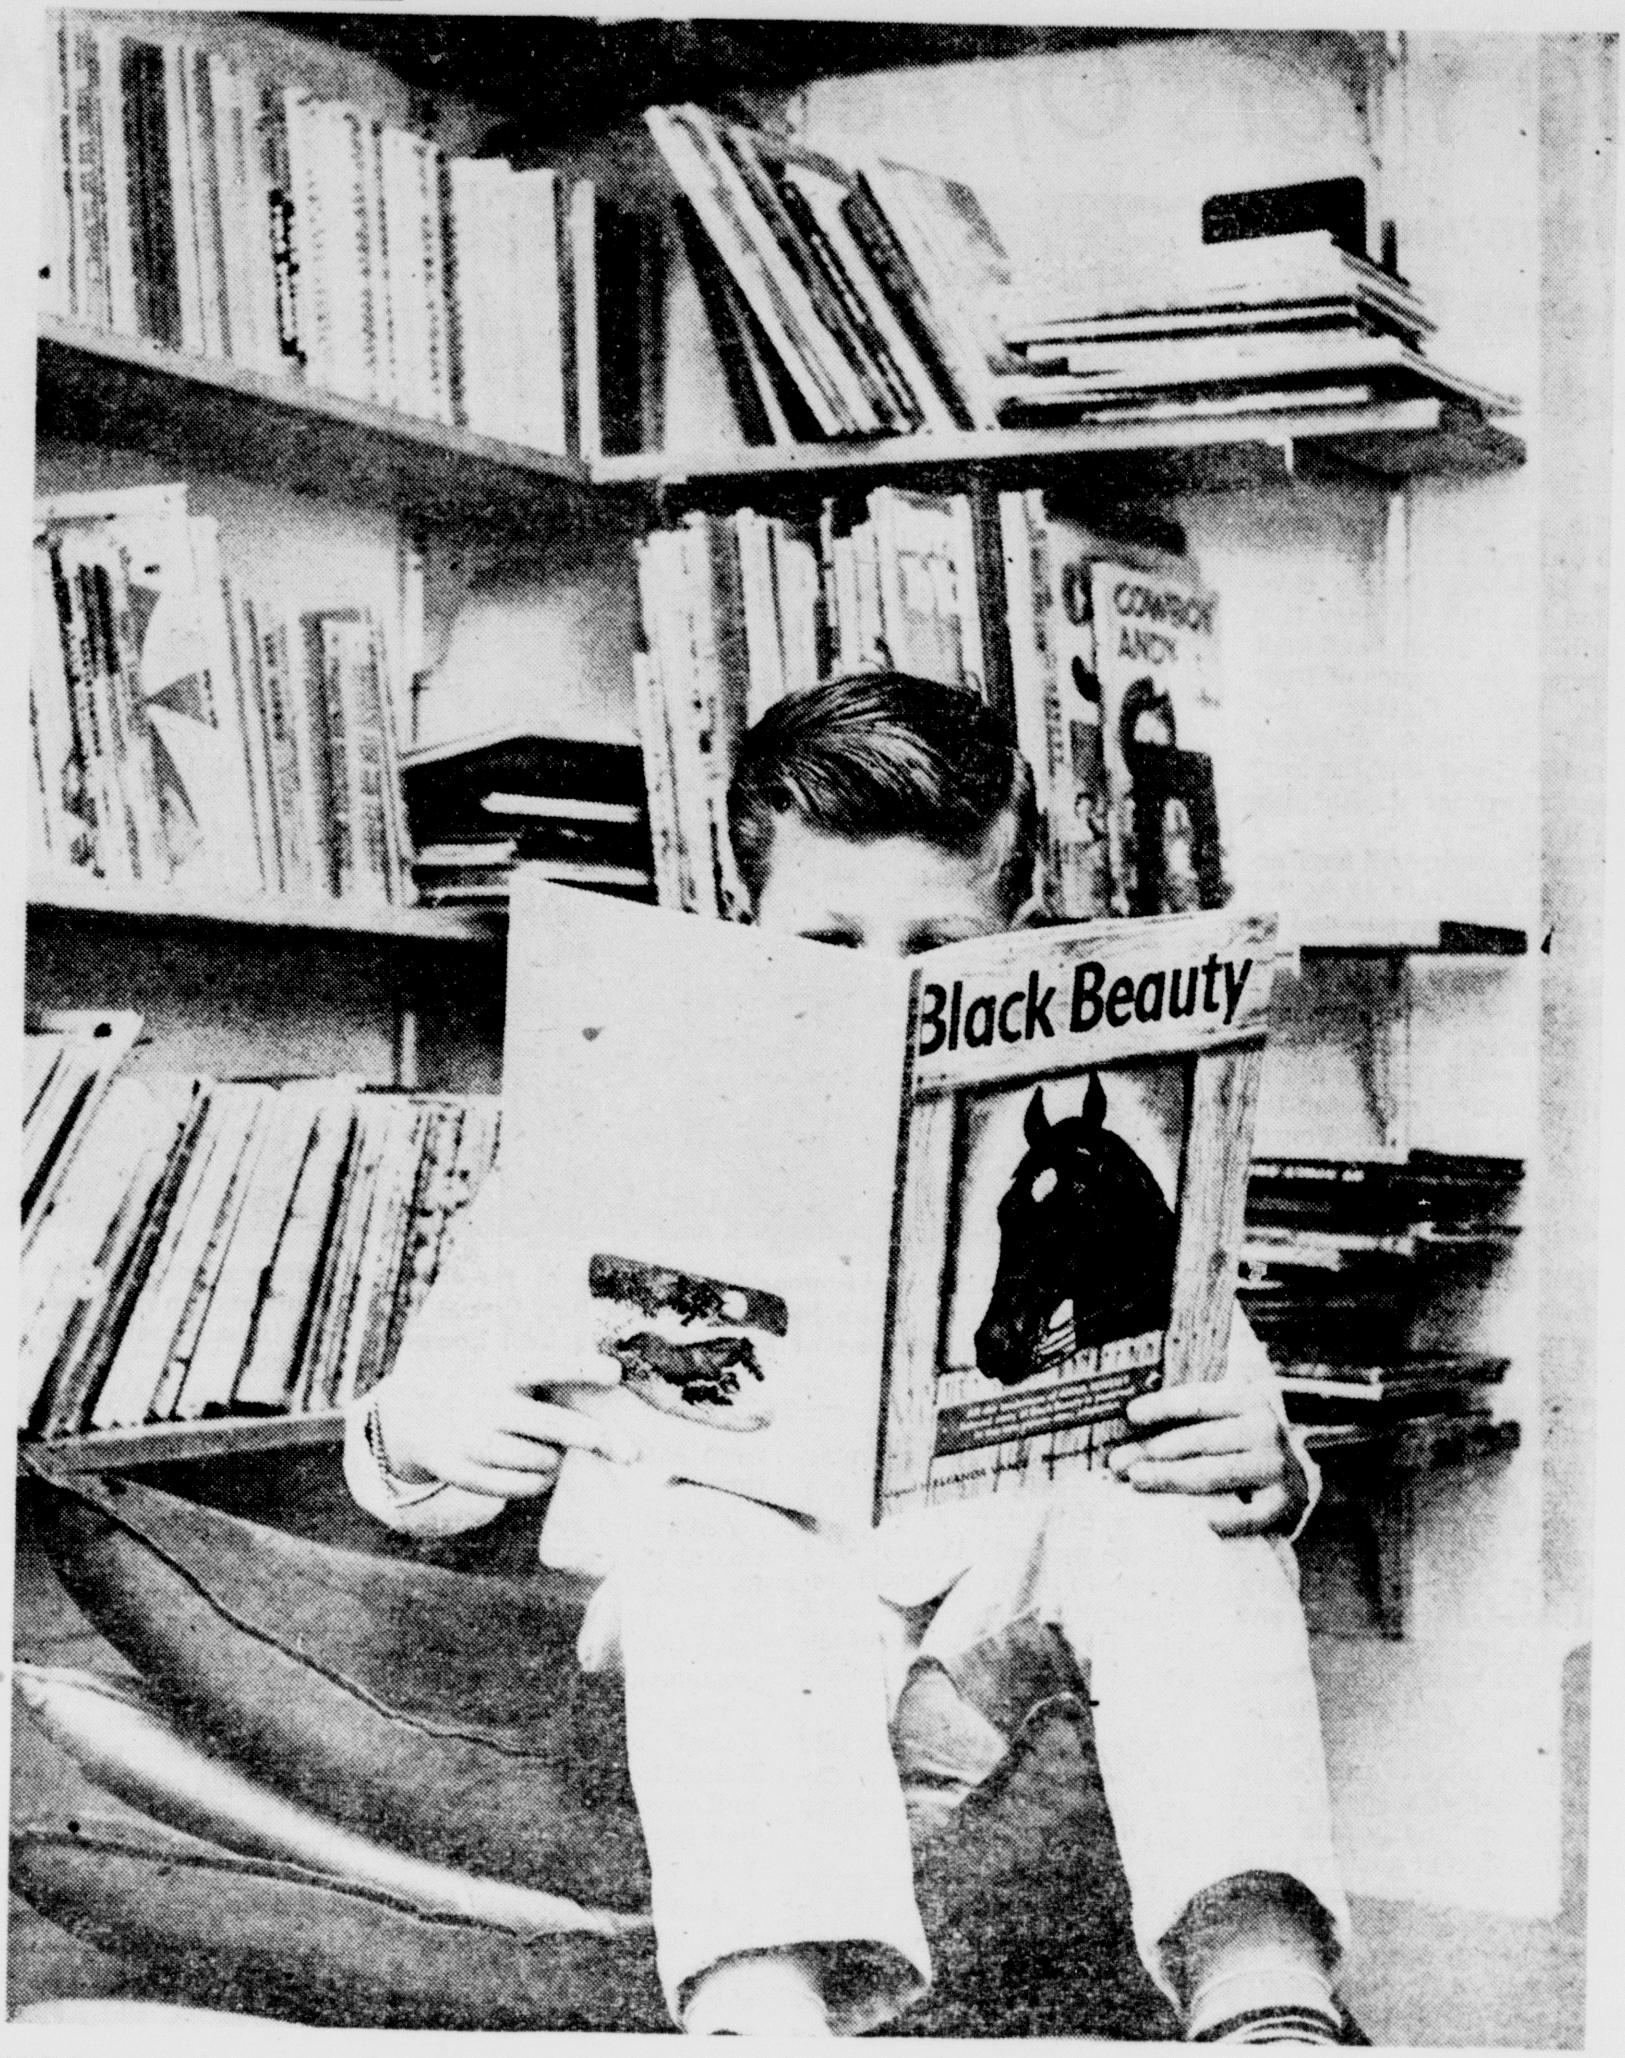
These were the words of Dr. Garrett L. Starmer of Chico, speaking on the operation of summer speech programs at the annual convention of the California Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc., in Oakland recently.

The Marin society, which has established a reputation for being first in so many fields of aid to the handicapped, has now entered the reading disability program. This is in accordance with a continuing shift of emphasis from caring solely for the physically crippled to the broader aspects of handicapping conditions such as speech and reading problems.

MANY YOUNG handicapped readers have applied for care to the Crippled Children's Society, who in turn provide remedial lessons at the DeWitt Reading Clinic on Fifth Street in San Rafael. The clinic, the first of its kind in Marin, was opened last September by Mrs. Merrill H. DeWitt, a graduate of Dominican College and a former officer in the Women's Army Corps. Mrs. DeWitt also directs a developmental reading program at Dominican Convent Upper School.

An older home has been remodeled for the DeWitt Clinic. However, the homelike atmosphere still prevails and a Dutch door provides an entrance to an area which has been purposely planned to relax the child in order for the reading therapist to better teach him. Wall-to-wall carpeting, soft lighting and floor cushions encourage the child to browse through the extensive library for children of all reading levels. The library is an important part in the relaxed environment designed to "build the ego" of the child who has gone through the traumatic experience of a severe reading disability, according to Mrs. DeWitt.

The ultimate goal of the therapists at the clinic is to make it possible for the child to develop an interest and love for reading, to open new vistas, and to give him an opportunity to use his potentialities. Mrs. DeWitt is dedicated to aid in every way the severely crippled child with reading handicaps or those wishing more ability. She is assisted in her duties by Brad Burris of Sausalito, assistant director, and by teachers Mrs. Arthur Lebow and Mrs. Mark Savage, both of Terra Linda, and Mrs. Bradford Simmons of Belvedere.



THE END GOAL of the program for children with reading handicaps, conducted by the Marin Society for Crippled Children through the DeWitt Reading Clinic of San Rafael, is this—the opening up of the wonderful world of the printed word for youngsters who would otherwise be denied the experience. Nine-year-old Rusty, a DeWitt Clinic pupil, reads a long-time favorite of youngsters, "Black Beauty."

EACH STUDIO in the clinic has the basic equipment for remedial reading (i.e., magnetized letters for development of phonics, basic games for this purpose), and is planned for any age student. At least one science research reading laboratory is available for each studio, with aids in developing better comprehension and speed and vocabulary enrichment.

Mechanical devices include the control reader, the reading accelerator for further development of speed; the tachistoscopic device for developing the ability to see rapidly and accurately; tape recorder, used to help students in developing oral reading and self-confidence in reading before others; microscope and slides; the Leaveil hand-eye coordinator, used to stimulate further the development of vision in the eye on the same side of the body as that of the dominant hand; and the reading eye camera, which films the eye in the process of reading.

Before admittance to the clinic, a thorough diagnostic reading analysis is given and the reading therapy program is predicated on the results of these findings.

The professional members of the case policy committee of the Crippled Children Society, who volunteer their time, make a proper investigation of each application for service, including applicants for the speech therapy clinic who are unable to pay or can pay only a portion of the fee. After conference with the applicant, the caseworker makes a recommendation to the case committee, presenting the facts of the case to the committee. This group in turn makes a recommendation to the society at its regular meeting regarding the action it feels should be taken. Names are kept confidential as each application usually reflects a situation with many complex troubles. Privacy of the individual from the added stress of exposure is protected. Caseworkers also give much helpful counseling, often referring contacts to other agencies set up to handle their specific problems.

OTHER AREAS of service authorized by the case policy committee and the society are diagnostic, medical care, hospitalization, medication, convalescent care, surgery, physiotherapy, dental and pre-orthodontia and appliances. Disabilities of applicants also include multiple sclerosis, epilepsy, cerebral palsy, post-polio, severe allergy, malocclusion, broken hip, mental retardation (requiring dental work under hospitalization, and various orthopedic disabilities.

Mrs. Edwin A. Wells is the chairman of the case policy committee and is assisted by Mrs. Richard Glassman, Mrs. Lydia Eicher, Mrs. Frank Lowe, Mrs. Charles F. Reindollar, Mrs. Roger Darrow and Miss Lillian Bianchi.

The continuing year-round programs of service are financed principally by the funds derived from the Easter Seal campaign which is due to open next Saturday and continue through April 4.

The Captain's Dream Of Boat Comes True

He Designs His Own Craft– Easy To Build, Sturdy At Sea

By KARL BARRON

A Larkspur tugboat captain's dream of a little ship that could weather the treacherous winds and tides of San Francisco Bay is being built in Livermore by a nuclear scientist, in San Francisco by the owner of a health food store, in New Jersey, Delaware, Michigan and Maryland by just plain boat lovers.

At the Stephens Institute of Massachusetts the boat is being tested, and through this may become a standard Sea Scout craft.

Chloe Maru is the name of the little ship—12 feet, one and one-half inches in length. Maru, familiar in Japanese ship names, means "always comes home." And Chloe has.

Capt. William H. Short, master of the Santa Fe tug John R. Hayden, is Chloe's designer. San Francisco born (1920) Short started sailing in centerboarders when he was 9 years old, and has been on and around boats all his life. Even during a World War II stretch with an Army Air Corps ground crew in India, he managed to get a special assignment on Army boats and in his off duty hours sailed native craft.

CHLOE CAME into being one day as Short struggled to remain right side up in an eight-foot El Toro. Wet and bedraggled, he manhandled the Toro to shore and vowed to come up with a boat as easy to build and inexpensive as the Toro, yet capable of crossing the Bay on her own without danger of capsizing.

Short borrowed generously from the boats of all nations to arrive at Chloe's final lines. Wide flaring sides and flat bottom came from the Cape Cod dory, one of the world's most seaworthy small craft.

Her huge width at the sheer or top level amidships was borrowed from the Dutch sailing scows which for centuries have braved the vicious storms of the North Sea.

El Toro's successful square "pram" bow became a part of Chloe, as did the rocker or lift of the bottom forward from the French Auray fishing dinghy; her flat bottom run and lean exit aft come from the proven hull form of all swift sailing hulls.

Short, asked why he uses the blunt bow, points out that the truncated or foreshortened dory is more seaworthy in a length under 13 feet, and uses plywood panels with a minimum of waste.

Short's designing was not hit or miss. He took courses at College of Marin in Kentfield after the war with the view to becoming a boat designer, but the need to make a living kept him working on the Bay, and ended in his obtaining his Bay pilot's license, then mate's and finally pilot and master's license.

CHLOE'S SINGLE sail—the lug rig—is the one used by Captain Bligh in his 3,000-mile open boat voyage. It has been used on lifeboats through the ages, is easily handled, provides more drive than the better-known Marconi rig, and is most efficient on a "reach," the point of sailing generally used in Bay crossing.

Captain Short, who lives with his wife and two children at 203 Hawthorne Avenue, Larkspur, tested Chloe thoroughly before giving her any publicity.

Daughter Laurie, 9, and Bruce, 7, were a vital part of that testing. Short saw Chloe as a family boat, so the young-

The high boom eliminates banged heads, as the crew usually sits on the bottom of the boat. Rig is short and easy to handle in a hard blow. (Photos by Karl Barron)

THIS IS DESIGNER Short's own sketch of the Chloe Maru, his 12-foot one and one-half inch sailing dory which he planned as an inexpensive, easy-to-build, safe and seaworthy craft of sufficient size to carry his entire family. The lines of the Chloe show tremendous dory flare, and the clean flat run of a fast sailer. These lines will appear soon in the publication, "Yachting Magazine." Meanwhile Short is already planning to design a second, larger boat.

The Chloe Maru, And How She Was Born

sters went along to uphold his faith in her safety factor, and also her roominess. They wear life jackets, as, says Short, "should children aboard a boat of any size."

Short says that in a long series of runs under all weather conditions, and finally a sail to the San Francisco lightship and back (10 miles of open Pacific) he has never had to get up on the rail to keep Chloe from capsizing.

At this point, he felt the design had lived up to his expectations, and sent a short letter and picture to Rudder Magazine. This appeared in the August issue, and Muriel Short found her self setting up an office at home as letters asking for plans began pouring in.

Short had the plans duplicated and began to send them out gratis. But a survey of the exchequer after some 30 requests had been filled showed such a deficit that he began asking a small fee for them.

CLOSE BEHIND the mailbag came phone calls and personal visits from boat lovers captivated by Chloe's looks and description.

One of these visits was from John J. House, head of General Motors Diesel Engine Division. House, a youth leader, was interested in Chloe for Sea Scout use.

He pointed out that the average Sea Scout unit had a boat which would carry up to 20 boys, but that only four or five had anything to do with the actual sailing, allowing the rest to become bored.

With a boat as sturdy and as cheap as Chloe, House reasoned, Sea Scout ships could have enough boats so that groups of four could sail together with everyone getting experience.

House arranged to have extensive tests made at the Stephens Institute of Woods Hole, Mass., operated by Olin Stephens, designer of Dorade, the big racing craft familiar to Bay Area yachting fans.

If Chloe lives up to her promise, she could well end up as the official craft of the Sea Scouts, but Short at present is more interested in seeing a Chloe "class" develop in the Bay Area.

Robert Roy, who works at the radiation laboratory in Livermore, is building a Chloe, and has several friends interested in the project. They are especially intrigued by the ease with which the boat can be trailored.

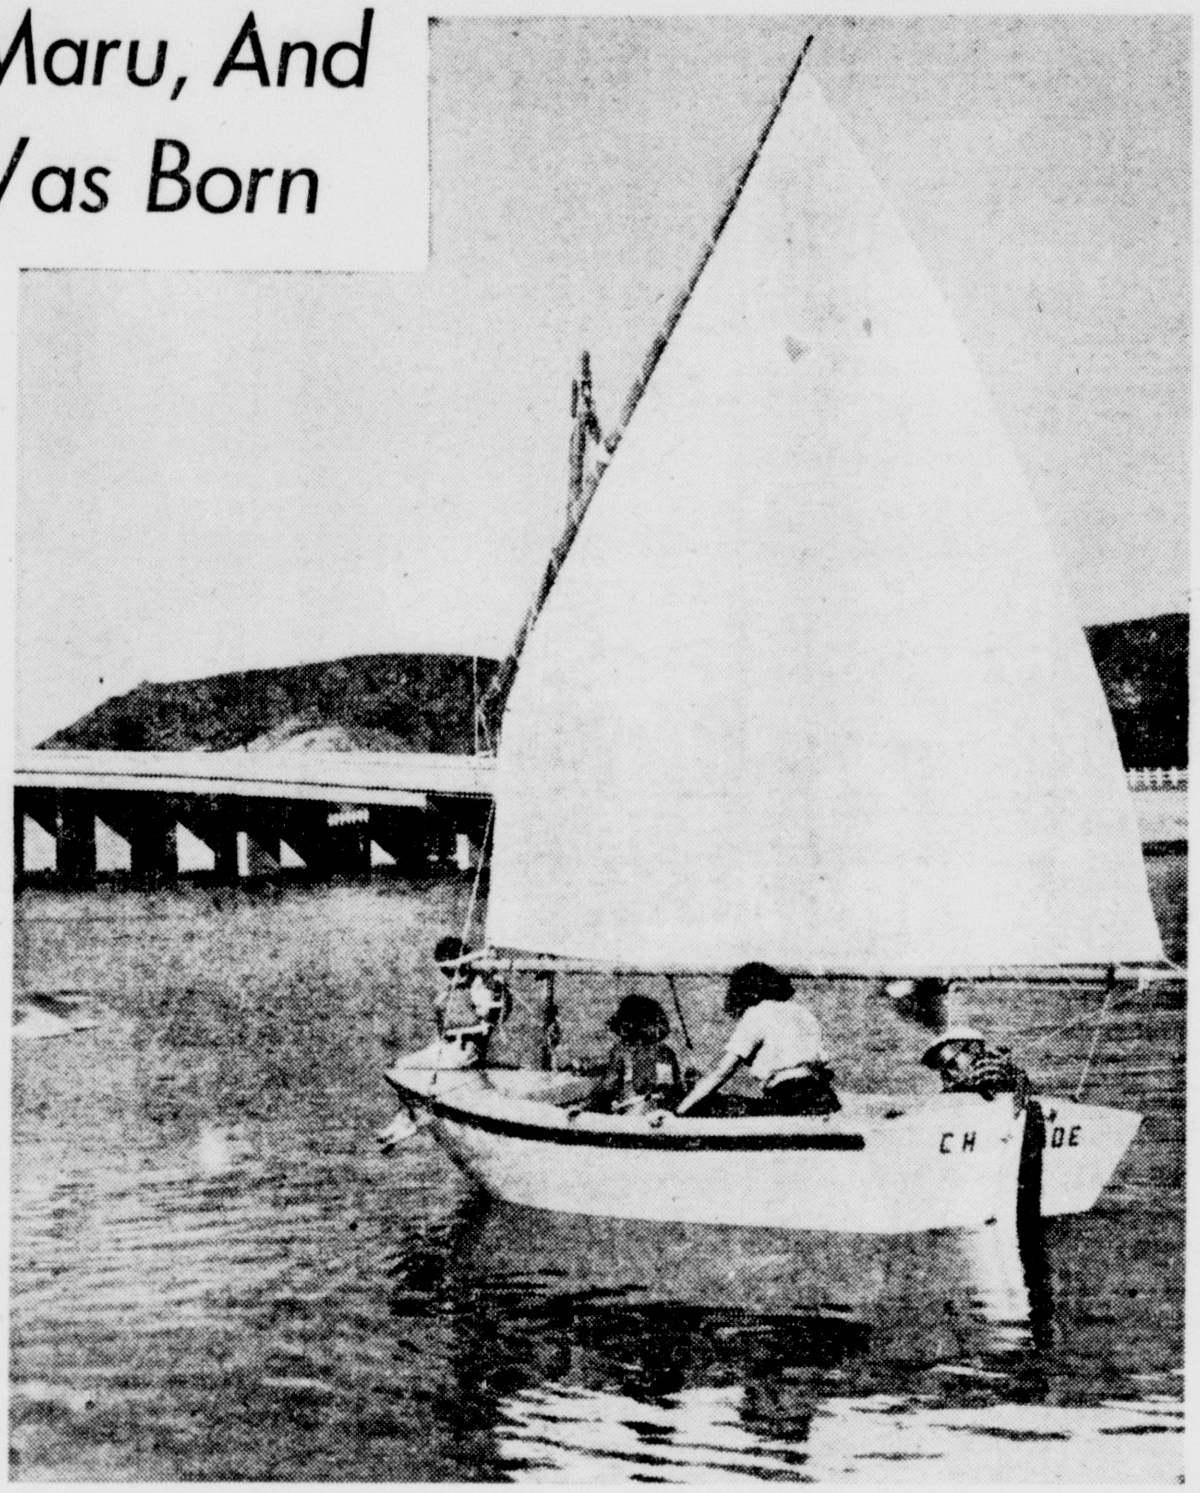
THE YOUNG Shorts like the whole idea. They'd really like to get next to the fellow in Sonoma who is building a Chloe with the intent of sailing her to La Paz at the tip of Baja California. Or perhaps the builders who plan to take Chloes to the Red Sea, Baltic Sea, Caspian Sea, and the Bay of Bengal. These presumably will ship the boat—not sail her there.

Muriel, a native of Leeds, England, who has been in this country for 13 years, manages to keep up with her housework, but finds the mail bag an ever increasing chore. With true British reserve, however, she smiles and keeps on typing.

Bill is planning to build a "jig" (the hardest part of construction), which he will rent to builders in the Bay Area. This will greatly speed up and simplify construction for the amateur. He has kept Chloe's framing easy to construct, and she is planked with quarter inch marine plywood on the sides and three-eighth on the bottom.

Bill's plan for another, larger boat is on the drawing boards. She's a 27-foot combination of dory and Chesapeake sharpie, designed for ocean cruising.

But right now, this new Maru will have to wait, he says. For every spare moment in the Short household is devoted to the dream come true—the little ship Chloe Maru.



THE CHLOE MARU is a family boat as designer William H. Short, his wife, Muriel, and their two children, Laurie, 9, and Bruce, 7, demonstrate by enjoying a sail aboard the craft under a light breeze. The weight of the two adults and two children still leaves plenty of freeboard.

ATTORNEY Harold J. Truett of San Rafael interviews a client in the offices of the Legal Aid Society of Marin County. The society, now almost three years old, obtains the services of the 85 members of the Marin County Bar Assn. who handle civil cases for persons who cannot afford an attorney. Located in the same office in the Albert Building in San Rafael is also the Lawyer Referral Service, operated by the bar association for those who can pay a moderate fee for legal services but who are not acquainted with Marin County lawyers. The Goal: Equal Justice For All

By CARLETON WILLIAMS

Mrs. H. of San Rafael, a chronic suffer from asthma, was recently advised by her doctor to remain in Marin County when her Air Force husband was shipped to Alaska.

Before his departure, she decided to replace their old jalopy, then on its last wheels. Persuaded by a used car salesman, she turned it in on a newer model, for which she also bought a set of new tires.

Her husband, after checking over the new car, decided it fell far short of the salesman's claims and refused to co-sign the purchase contract.

Mrs. H returned the car to the used car lot and attempted to reclaim her old one, only to be told by the salesman that he would not return her down payment and that the new tires now belonged to him.

A MILITARY legal assistance officer at Hamilton Air Force Base referred Mrs. H to the Legal Aid Society of Marin County.

There she was assigned to an attorney who took the case to court and won a judgment for the down payment and cost of the tires—plus 6 per cent interest.

Mrs. G of Mill Valley took a day off from work to visit the Legal Aid Society, bringing with her a divorce complaint charging "extreme cruelty."

The charge of "cruelty" was apparently her refusal to agree to the purchase of a new car. It was this which had precipitated her husband's angry departure—after which he drew all funds from their joint bank account and sought a divorce.

Mrs. G was the mother of four children, one requiring a series of operations. She had never earned enough to support herself, much less an entire family with unusually high medical expenses.

Disposition of the case: Mrs. G was found eligible for Legal Aid and referred to an attorney who filed a cross-complaint for divorce, asking alimony and child-support. Her situation will never be easy, but with a regular amount coming from her ex-husband, she is now able to say, "At least I can breathe."

Mrs. N, a Kentfield widow, sent her husband a monthly sum (from her meager earnings as baby sitter and houseworker) for incidentals at a veterans' hospital where he had been confined for many months.

AFTER HIS death Mrs. N was told by the hospital that they could not return unspent money which had been deposited to his account. It could only go, they told her, to the administrator of the estate.

Since this money constituted the entire estate, and Mrs. N was now receiving only Social Security benefits, she could not afford the services of an attorney.

Disposition of the case: The attorney who interviewed Mrs. N at Legal Aid decided that the matter could be handled from the society's office. A certificate of entitlement was prepared and sent to the Veterans' Administration. Mrs. N received the money.

These three actual cases, with initials and locations changed, were part of the 378 cases handled last year by the society which maintains offices in the Albert Building in San Rafael.

What is the Legal Aid Society?

The society was established in its present form in July, 1958. Prior to that time, the legal aid program was handled through individual lawyers' offices. These lawyers would either settle cases on the spot with advice, or refer them in rotation to members of the Marin County Bar Assn.

This method was unsatisfactory. For the lawyer, his time was endlessly occupied without sufficient compensation; for clients, if the lawyer was away from his office as for an extended trial, there was no place to turn.

THROUGH THE efforts of Leonard A. Thomas (now municipal judge, then an attorney) and Ann L. Diamond, Ross attorney and president of the society, Marin lawyers were polled as to their opinions about legal aid work. Would they prefer to pay for a legal aid society which would hire a full-time lawyer —or would they continue the referral system on a share-the-load basis? Did they feel their cases in the past were truly in need of such legal aid from a financial standpoint? Should they ask for community assistance and cooperation, including the service of laymen on a board of directors?

Their overwhelming answer to all three questions was yes.

Thus, the Legal Aid Society of Marin County was established as a non-profit corporation with lay members on the board. The Albert Building suite was engaged (at a lower than usual rent). Furniture was bought second hand (or donated), and moved in (literally) by Thomas and attorney S. J. Hugh Allen.

Office hours, then as now, were set at 10 a.m. to noon, 1 to 3 p.m., and a secretary was hired to schedule appointments and keep statistics.

In the beginning all applicants were interviewed by Mrs. Diamond and the late Delger Trowbridge. Later Thomas, still in private practice and the first president of the society, called on the bar association for volunteers for the interviewing duty.

Twenty-five lawyers volunteered (including Thomas; Joseph G. Wilson, also now a municipal judge; and Roger P. Garety, now district attorney).

IN 1959 THE volunteer system was discontinued and the whole membership of the bar association now takes turns interviewing applicants.

Legal aid is now available for civil cases only. Felony criminal cases are handled by the public defender, and court-appointed attorneys represent persons accused of misdemeanors.

One of the society's biggest sources of clients, incidentally, is the Marin County Welfare Department — welfare has a budget to pay clients' medical expenses, but none for legal expenses. That is up to the Legal Aid Society and the bar association.

"We are a low-budget agency, made possible because legal services are donated and

Sausalito's Beautiful Sister City

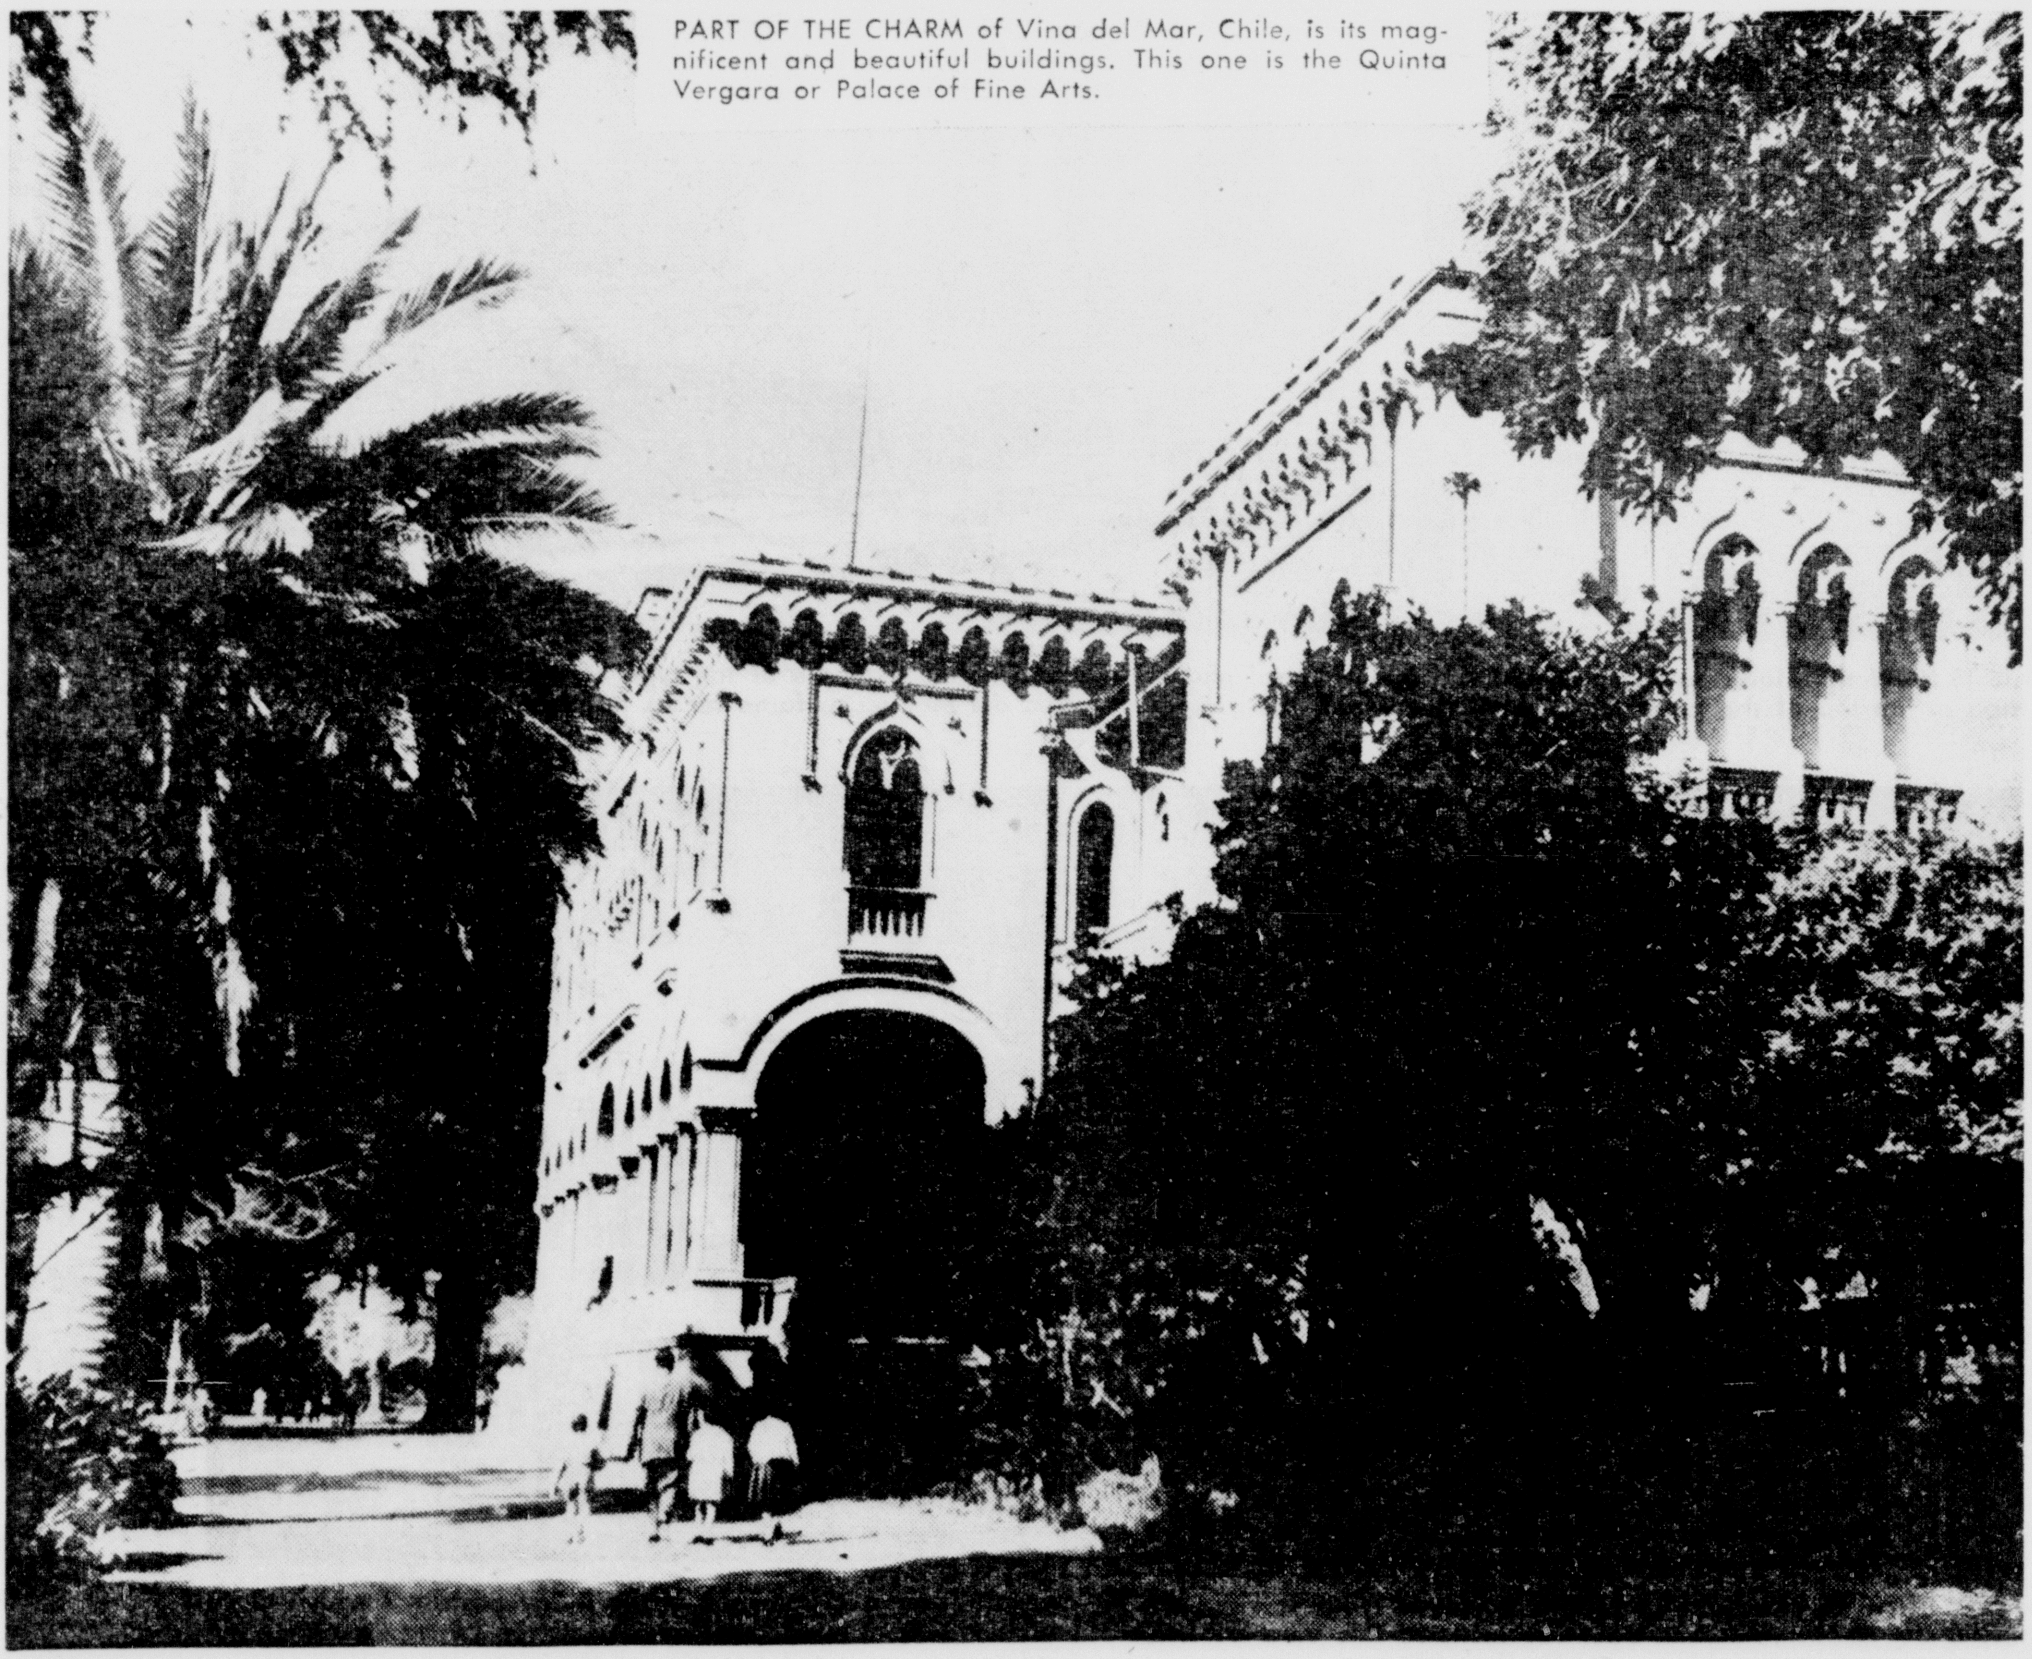
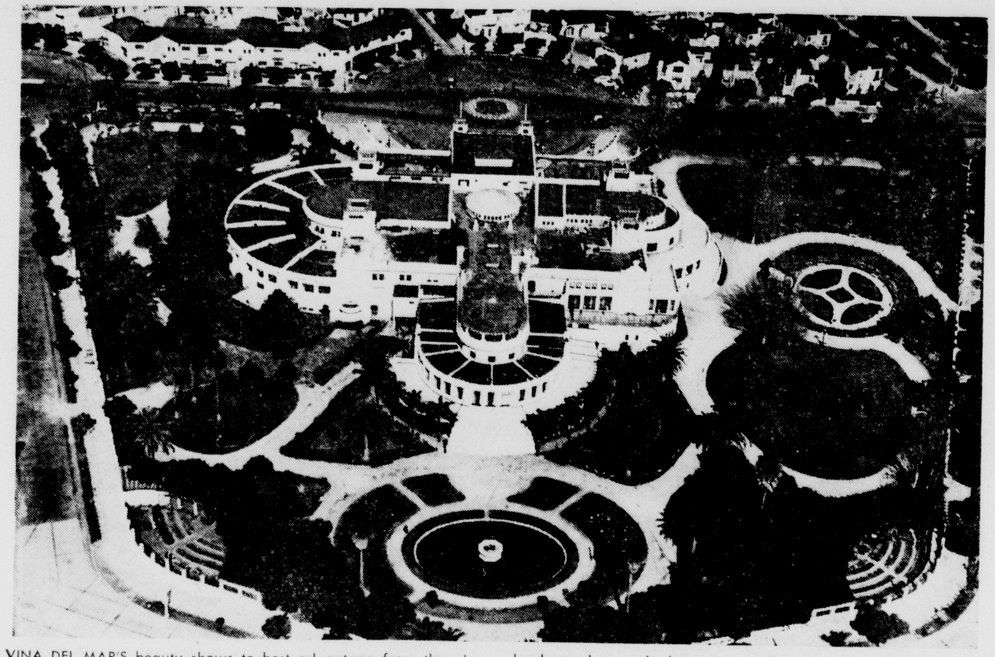
PART OF THE CHARM of Vina del Mar, Chile, is its magnificent and beautiful buildings. This one is the Quinta Vergara or Palace of Fine Arts.





VINA DEL MAR'S beauty shows to best advantage from the air, as this aerial photograph of Municipal Casino and the carefully landscaped grounds that surround the magnificent building demonstrates. A Vina del Mar residential area can be seen at the top of the photo.

MIRAMAR AVENUE, lined with palm trees and running along an estuary to the seashore, is a magnificent Vina del Mar thoroughfare—one of the most beautiful in the world, proud Chileans believe.

BEAUTIFUL BEACHES provide the residents of and visitors to Vina del Mar is an ideal spot in which to frolic under the warm sun. Handsome buildings that line the shore add to the scenic beauty.

A Look At The Beauty That Is Vina Del Mar

Ceremonies at Sausalito's small but beautiful Plaza Vina del Mar next Saturday at 12:15 p.m. will commemorate the first anniversary of the Marin beauty spot's sister city ties with a larger and equally lovely Latin American neighbor—Vina del Mar.

Marinites know that Sausalito is one of the country's most charming cities.

And those few who have had the good fortune to visit Vina del Mar know that the sister city can rightfully claim the same place in its own country—Chile.

For those who have not visited Vina del Mar, your Independent-Journal runs on these pages some photographs showing only a few of the Chilean city's many beauty spots.

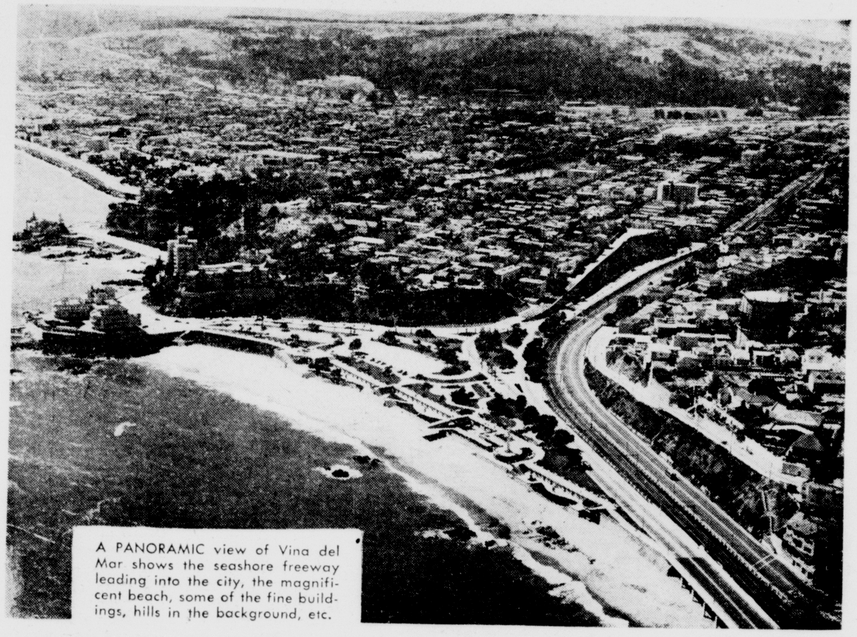
They are photographs which Vina del Mar itself has chosen as representative of its atmosphere and attractions, and which it has sent to its North American sister city.

Sausalitans, in turn, have sent photographs of their own city to Vina del Mar. Some of those photos appeared in an earlier issue of the Marin Magazine before being sent to Chile.

Beautifully-groomed parks, wide and tree-lined avenues, a breath-taking seashore, handsome edifices—these are, as you can see by these photos, some of reasons that permit Vina del Mar to rightfully lay claim to being one of the world's most beautiful cities.

Vina del Mar is hoping that more and more Marinites—and Americans from throughout the U. S. for that matter—will come to their city to see its beauty for themselves.

Marinites are assured of an especially warm welcome in the hospitable Chilean city because of the sister city ties—ties which the citizens of both cities involved are confident will grow stronger and stronger with the passing of the years.



A PANORAMIC view of Vina del Mar shows the seashore freeway leading into the city, the magnificent beach, some of the fine buildings, hills in the background, etc.

A CITY THAT LENDS itself to picture postcards—that is Vina del Mar, Chile, Sausalito's sister city. For instance this view of Bolnearío Miramar is from one of the many postcards which tourists mail home from Vina del Mar to describe better than their own inadequate words the beauties of the city.

THE SOCIAL CLUB is one of the buildings which Vina del Mar citizens point out to visitors as a tourist attraction and as an example of the fine edifices to be found in their city.

YARUR CASTLE is still another much-admired edifice to be found in Vina del Mar. It was such beauty that attracted Sausalitans to Vina del Mar in selecting their sister city.

The Goal Is Justice For All

ANN L. DIAMOND, Ross attorney and president of the Legal Aid Society of Marin County, greets Judge Leonard A. Thomas as he pays a visit to the society's offices in the Albert Building in San Rafael. Judge Thomas was one of the founders of the local society in 1958, before he became a judge. The society, which will hold its annual meeting and election of officers Thursday, has helped more than 1,000 persons in need of legal assistance. (Independent-Journal photo) because of donated income," says Mrs. Diamond. "The bar association pays a regular monthly amount toward our support, the Lawyers' Wives of Marin help with fund-raising events and now have a committee to decorate the office.

"The Legal Secretaries' Assn. has donated money, furniture and time—law firms, loan associations and title companies all give," Mrs. Diamond says appreciatively.

"Even so, there were months when expenses ran ahead of income," she says.

A membership drive to recruit lawyers who live in Marin but practice in San Francisco was undertaken by Allen, the first finance chairman. "The response," Judge Thomas recalls, "was in the finest tradition of the bar."

IN 1959, THE National Legal Aid Assn. gave a grant from Ford Foundation funds to assist the society in getting on its feet. And in 1960, it was accepted as a member agency of the United Crusade.

Soon after the society was established, it became apparent that a Lawyer Referral Service would fill a need for clients whose incomes would permit them to pay moderate legal fees but who knew no lawyers in the county. Such persons often applied for legal aid because they knew nowhere else to turn.

Late in 1958, such a service was established, working out of the same office as the Legal Aid Society.

About one-half the Marin County Bar Assn. belongs to the Lawyer Referral Panel. The secretary, who makes appointments between lawyers and clients, dispatches clients to attorneys on a rotating basis, within the limits of their specialties.

Under the Lawyer Referral Service, clients pay $5 for the initial conference. Lawyers pay annual dues for membership on the panel in order to help support the Legal Aid Society.

Occasionally, according to Mrs. Diamond, clients are doubtful as to the ability of lawyers on such a panel—do they join, they ask, because they can't otherwise get clients? Are they callow youths, eager for their first case?

"Not in Marin," Mrs. Diamond says emphatically. "The panel's age and experience range is complete and includes many of the most respected attorneys in the county."

CLIENTS COME in or telephone for appointments. These are scheduled for Tuesday and Friday mornings, when a lawyer takes his turn to interview the applicants.

Often the lawyer can settle the problem at that time with advice. Often a letter or a phone call from the office will take care of the matter. If the applicant needs more elaborate legal service, and if he cannot pay for such service, his case is assigned to an attorney to be handled out of a private office.

A large portion of cases are those of persons being sued, who need to be declared guardians of incompetent persons and those who feel they have been cheated by persons.

Almost half of the applications for legal aid come from persons needing assistance in family situations.

As legal aid societies go, Marin's is a comparatively small time operation, and still has only one secretary (now Elizabeth Kibbee) and is open only four hours a day. (San Francisco Legal Aid Society is open eight hours a day, has four full-time attorneys.)

Though small, the Marin society will have handled over 1,000 cases when the society holds its annual meeting and election of officers next Thursday.

Members of the bar consider legal aid a professional obligation. Need for legal assistance—like the need for medical assistance — knows no economic bounds.

THE MARIN Bar considers itself responsible for seeing that the motto of the National Legal Aid Society shall apply to all citizens alike:

"Equal Justice Under Law."

Tips on Purchase and Home Care of Your Wardrobe

Imitation Suede Jackets Are Drycleaning Problem

A real suede jacket, which is the tanned skin of an animal, will give long and durable service. But when shopping, don't confuse suede cloth with real suede.

Drycleaners from various parts of the United States have been sending ever increasing numbers of these suede cloth jackets to the Analysis Laboratory of the National Institute of Drycleaning. These jackets have been losing their suede effect.

After careful study the Institute has concluded that time and light affect the adhesive substance upon which the suede fiber is sprayed. An official technical bulletin which the Institute sends to all of its members states in part, "unless the rubber based adhesive is carefully formulated when coated thinly on a textile, it breaks down from oxidation, giving off sufficient hydrochloric acid to cause fabric deterioration."

Only recently has this become a major problem with drycleaners. At this early stage in its experience with the problem the Institute suggests that you bear in mind when you're shopping for a suede jacket that genuine suedes give durable performance while some imitations don't.

Profile Of A Busy Marinite

They saw each other as often as possible and even Henry Besozzi had to admit that the young hotel and restaurant operator had become an eligible suitor.

IT WAS NOT until 1927, however, that a wedding date was set. All members of the Ghiringhelli, Pagani and Besozzi families looked forward to it as a festive celebration.

But on a bright Saturday afternoon in late April the couple spoiled all their plans by sneaking down to Colma to be married. There was no honeymoon or fanfare, and Antoinette came to live and work with Joe at the Tamalpais Hotel. She says she still has a honeymoon coming.

And so in a way this is a story of two people, for Antoinette's own personality is too turbulent to be considered altogether dispassionately. Joe, though energetic and capable, is essentially easy going and mild mannered. Antoinette has always been impulsive, outspoken, generous, tempestuous and softly sentimental by turns.

Having met her once you might immediately become her friend or her foe, but the choice would not necessarily rest with you so much as with her own approval or disapproval.

The ensuing years of marriage were fruitful. The two complemented one another and the Tamalpais Hotel turned out to be a good venture. Their first child, Dolores, was born while they were here and then Robert and Harry. The youngest, John, came later—and, like their father, all except Robert were born during the month of February.

During their courting years Joe had taken Antoinette to dine at Deer Park Villa, then under the ownership of Dan Celani who is still living in Fairfax. On one occasion Joe had told her with simple magniloquence that someday he would buy it for her.

"HE DIDN'T mention then that I was going to have to work for it," she said sharply, but the tone was one which aimed at Joe always seems to carry more of a caress than censure.

Joe did make good his word, and the four-acre site was purchased in 1937. Son John was born two years later.

If Deer Park Villa had been an inspiration it was also to be a rugged test for family unity and hard work. The buildings were far from modern and required considerable renovation to match Joe's and Antoinette's ideas of what they should be. But their hardy Italian forebears had not failed to pass on ample measure of stamina and perseverance.

In the course of growing up, all of Joe's and Antoinette's children learned to become excellent cooks. All, that is, except Dolores.

"She never did," said Joe. "About all she could do was boil water. She must be a throwback."

But Dolores, now Dolores Forni, has two youngsters of her own and if the family talent passed her by, it has been restored to her immediate lineage.

Robert, with five youngsters, is known to many Marinites for his former operation of Lord Fairfax Catering Co. He will manage the new Dominic's restaurant for the Crocker-McDevitt Enterprises in San Rafael when it is opened in April.

HARRY AND JOHN, also married, have had family additions and assist at Deer Park Villa, taking some of the work off Joe's shoulders.

The Ghiringhelli grandchildren now number 11, a figure that may soon be expanded to an even dozen.

Joe's personality and his 34 years of living with Antoinette are best summed up by Antoinette herself.

"He has always been willing to put himself out and sometimes people take advantage of him," she says. "That makes me mad, and I guess I get disagreeable.

"We've had our own squabbles — what married couple hasn't? But if I lose my temper I'm also the first one to give in when it comes to a showdown. He's a . . . swell guy — even if he is stubborn."

He's a . . . swell guy.

THE DEER PARK VILLA grounds cover more than four acres of wooded areas, shrubs and flower gardens. Here Antoinette and Joe Ghiringhelli examine a choice camelia, one of their few plants now in bloom. By Easter the grounds will begin to take on more color from large, showy, white, pink and blue flower clusters on the hundreds of hydrangeas they have cultivated.

BOOK REVIEWS

A Sympathetic Look At Our Voluntary Health Services

THE GENTLE LEGIONS, by Richard Carter, Doubleday and Co., 312 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

To some 15 million Americans (the figure is Richard Carter's), the rituals of the poster child, the kick-off banquet, the house-to-house "march" are expressions of deep devotion to great and worthwhile causes. To some uncounted number among the remaining 165 millions, the poster child is in bad taste, the kick-off banquet is barbarically boring, and the house-to-house canvass is a too-often-repeated annoyance.

The 15 million are the volunteer workers on behalf of the upwards of 70 national voluntary health organizations. They and the causes for which they work, are examined deeply and in detail by Carter, author of "The Doctor Business," in his new book, "The Gentle Legions."

The health organizations, from the mighty Red Cross down to the Myasthenia Gravis Foundation, get a clean bill of health from the author. They may stumble and make mistakes, but they are dedicated to a "tradition that flows from the Biblical imperative of active responsibility in the alleviation of social problems." And they have done a great job toward bringing better health to all their fellow men.

That they have not done a still greater job, Carter concludes, is in part because their fund raising activities have been brought under siege-gun attack. Their multiple doorbell-ringing "drives" are widely attacked as nuisances — although, as Carter says, "so many more clamant and less altruistic candidates spring so swiftly to mind."

The writer finds that much of the criticism of the national health organizations is inspired by the same group largely responsible for the United Fund. He finds that group is "Big Industry."

Fund raisers for a multiplicity of causes (of which the national health agencies are in fact but a small minority) became such an annoyance in the factories, and actually cost so many man-hours of work, that the big industrialists felt they must act to protect themselves. Their solution was "One Big Give," to which their corporations could make impressive gifts and to which their employees could contribute painlessly through payroll deductions. These industrialists brought the United Funds into being for this principal purpose. Carter finds. An auxiliary result was to reduce the amount of giving, since one contribution to be spread over many agencies would not in most cases be so large as an individual contribution to each.

United Fund success in eliminating fund-raising annoyance was promptly handicapped by refusal of several of the largest national health organizations to join up. They insisted on running their own campaigns. And this, contends Carter, is behind much of the criticism directed at them.

While Carter finds some good in every one of the voluntary health organizations, and a great deal of good in many of them, he finds no good in the United Fund.

He decries the "Big Brother" philosophy of the payroll deduction, with the boss looking over the worker's shoulder to see that he gives —and bosses deciding where his dollar goes. He cites examples to prove that United Funds are not administered properly to allocate the money where it would do the most good, despite their claims. He considers the United Funds a scheme to shift more of the burden of supporting charities to those who already bear a disproportionate share: The working classes.

One is forced to suspect—even if one agrees with Carter—that he has dredged for examples of good on behalf of the national health foundations and for examples of bad on behalf of the United Funds. But on both he has done a probing, interpretive job. Moreover, he turns out the whole in highly readable prose. There is not a dull page in "The Gentle Legions."

"THE GENTLE LEGIONS," a book about the national voluntary health organizations and their conflicts with local united fund programs, was written by Richard Carter, an experienced journalist who resides in Ossining, N.Y.

FIRST STEP UP TOWARD HEAVEN by Adela Rogers St. Johns, Prentice-Hall, $4.95, 293 pages. Reviewed by Elizabeth Kibbee.

When I was young I lived in the prosaic East, where custom prevailed and the tenor of life was even, if dull.

Occasionally travelers from a far-off land called Southern California came to our town and regaled us with tales of things so strange that we could scarcely credit our ears. Like Forest Lawn, a sort of Shangri-La where inhabitants of that exotic realm were interred amongst waterfalls, gardens, organ music, and buildings called by names like The Wee Kirk o' the Heather; this following strange pagan rituals quite unlike our sober funeral ceremonies.

Now along comes this book by the journalist Adela Rogers St. Johns. And do you know, those travelers were not pathological liars or even dope addicts, as we provincials had darkly suspected. Mrs. St. Johns has herself attended many of those ceremonies at Forest Lawn and has found them good. They are in such heart-warming contrast, in fact, to the grim ones of her youth that she has instructions on file for her own inurnment there, and she has invited her granddaughters to wear red dresses to the ritual, if they want to. (She couldn't wear red for her own grandmother's last rites, which bugged her.)

The form of the book is biographical. It is the story of "The Builder" (of Forest Lawn, that is), one Hubert Eaton. After a minutely-detailed American youth in Missouri, Eaton took an engineering course. He had a brief career along those lines, then was cast jobless on the broad plain of Los Angeles where, according to Mrs. St. Johns, he was seized by a vision. (This sort of thing happens all the time down there.) After that there was no stopping him. The desert has bloomed with his enterprise and imagination. All this can hardly fail to impress "The Reader."

And how is it written? Like this. Short sentences, often without predicates. Rhetorical questions.

What is the virtue of this? None, so far as I can see. Except that it lends itself to parody.

After The Reader reads about The Builder, he may need an antidote. The best is probably Evelyn Waugh's "The Loved One," in which there is a description of a place that sounds similar.

FOR THE CHILDREN

Lovable Little Colt Sure To Win Hearts Of Kids

LITTLE SMOKE by Lace Kendall, Coward-McCann Inc., $2.50.

What child could resist the story in which a lovable little colt is the hero? Especially when the lively text is backed up with some excellent drawings of the youngster by Sam Savitt.

The child will follow Little Smoke from his first wobbly steps until he first experiences the thrill of running. In between lie many adventures.

It is the kind of book which the child will not read once and put away. He or she will look at it a great many times with undiminished enjoyment.

MEN OF SCIENCE AND INVENTION by Michael Blow, American Heritage Publishing Co., 151 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The name, "American Heritage Junior Library," is in itself sufficient recommendation for a book for young readers. The members of the series are uniformly well done examples of how to make history appetizing for our youngsters.

This newest book is no exception. The text, as always, is interesting, well-written and authentic. The illustrations—there are 143 of them, 58 in color—are superb.

It covers invention in the U.S. from the days of the colonists until the present atomic and space probing age.

It is bound to instill in the youngster a greater respect for men of science, and a greater realization of the extent of the debt we owe to Edison, Franklin and men like them.

IN A PUMPKIN SHELL by Joan Walsh Anglund, Harcourt, Brace and Co., $2.95. Reviewed by Claudia Royal.

Mrs. Anglund's latest book is a charmer for children. She has selected one of the old nursery rhymes to go with each letter of the alphabet. Her illustrations, in lovely colors as well as pen and ink drawings, make the book most attractive to the young child.

THE AFTERMATH

I wait for you,
As we all wait
For unexpected dreams we expect.

Perched, as the bird, I listen for a sound of you.
And I watch for a glimpse of you.
The days are long, and the nights are longer,
Yet longer still is the wait.

Through a million hopes it seems I've stayed
Each pulsing moment when I sense your nearness
Is put to death by my emptiness.
They all tell me I should forget
And open my doors to the bountiful life—
But forgetfulness loses keys.

Those who know see a dead girl,
Yet she stirs against her inner burden.
Let us weep for her, for, see, she dies,
Withers from her loneliness
And is gone.

STEREO NOTES

Here's A Collection That Will Please Fans Of Jazz Classics

By JOHN SUNIER

THESAURUS OF CLASSIC JAZZ—(four records)—C4L 18 Columbia.

This is going to make a lot of classic jazz fans happy, but it will leave a few unhappy. Those are the collectors who have paid something like 30 dollar a side for some of these numbers on their original 78 r.p.m. shellac discs.

There have been a lot of LP re-releases of old jazz shellac discs previously, but many have been marred by poor choices musically and too much attempted "cleaning-up" in the final sound. These are all outstanding classics, 16 of them previously not reissued, and the sound is terrific, with the surface noise down to a reasonable level.

The cream of early improvised jazz is included in this most comprehensive collection on LP. Just a few of the names represented: The Dorsey Brothers, Frankie Trumbauer, Bix Beiderbecke, Eddie Long, Miff Mole, Red Nichols.

The notes by Richard DuPage and Frank Driggs, titled "An Affectionate Reminiscence," are suitably affectionate, and very complete, enclosed in a separate booklet.

Red Nichols, the most prolific jazz recording artist of the '20s, displays his talents and those of the important jazzmen he brought together, on more than two sides of the collection, to my delight.

The music throughout is sparkling, sophisticated and somewhat subdued, considering the roaring age it was born in. The album cover displays eight labels from almost forgotten record companies that should bring back more memories to some. The set, by the way is not available in stereo. How could it be? But who cares?

Marin Living

Here Are A Couple Of Morning Glories With Good Manners

Morning Glories are not noted for their neat and tidy habits. In fact, most gardeners shudder at the thought of them in their gardens.

What most gardeners don't know, however, is that two members of this noted family are well mannered, compact and ideal for use in the landscape.

We speak of two which any nurseryman can introduce you to. They are the Bush Morning Glory and the Ground Morning Glory.

One is a shrubby little sun lover that thrives on tough going; the other is a trailer of modest growth that will cascade down from a raised bed in a show of color you won't soon forget.

The predominant color of Bush Morning Glory derives from its silvery foliage which serves the perfect backdrop for its delicately white flowers. The blooms, obviously Morning Glories, are long lasting and fresh looking even in a blast-furnace sun.

The shrub is resistant to drouth and one to consider for a sunny side of the house or along a drive where it draws attention but doesn't need much of it. Individual shrubs are about two feet high and twice as wide, so plant accordingly if you want a row of them. Bloom from late spring through summer and into fall.

Ground Morning Glory, while it sprawls appealingly on the ground, is much better used in raised beds, where its cascading flowers are better shown off. Grayish in color, the foliage sets off lavender-blue blossoms. When you see the blooms, you'll know them as Morning Glories right away.

Best culture for these two is no culture at all—or very little of it. They will respond to water with lusher growth, but demand good drainage if they are to live long. Heat brings out the blooms, so give them the sunniest spot in your garden and they'll thrive in it for years.

It's Pink Planting Time Now

Members of the Dianthus family, otherwise known as Pinks, have brightened our borders and cutting beds since time immemorial.

The dainty little border, pinks, familiar to all devotees of the old fashioned garden, are just as dainty and nice as ever they were. And our taller, more voluptuous Carnations seem to get better with every passing year.

If you would enjoy these showy and fragrant garden favorites, plan to set them out during the coming weeks when nurserymen have rooted cuttings in stock. Planted during this period, they will bloom this summer and fall—and for many summers and falls thereafter.

FOR CUTTING, the tall garden Carnations are unsurpassed. Their spicy fragrance and long-stemmed blooms are designed to attract attention in the house. And every year seems to offer new and exciting colors to choose from.

Border Pinks bring a touch of nostalgia to modern gardens. These are the same Pinks of England's cottage gardens, modest in isolation, but showy when grouped or planted closely in rows.

PINKS THRIVE on sun and seem unable to get too much of it. Avoid the acid soil—not a difficult thing to do in most of this area—and treat them much as you would Chrysanthemums. This means pinching back to encourage branching. When this is accomplished with the tall Carnations, remove side buds if you would have show-size blooms.

CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

✔You can prune Fuchsias this month. They bloom on new wood, so don't be afraid to cut back the old growth.

✔You can cut back Lantanas to keep the plants young looking, and discourage straggling.

✔Plant citrus in a warm, sunny spot in the garden. Tubbed dwarf citrus is a colorful and fragrant addition to any garden.

✔Plant all evergreen trees and shrubs and all bare-root deciduous shrubs that you can still find in nurseries. It's getting close to the end of the supply.

A Plant To Keep In Mind

By CHARLES FERRONI

The genus rhododendron has made enormous strides during the past century, due to the efforts, patience and time of our American, British and Dutch hybridizers.

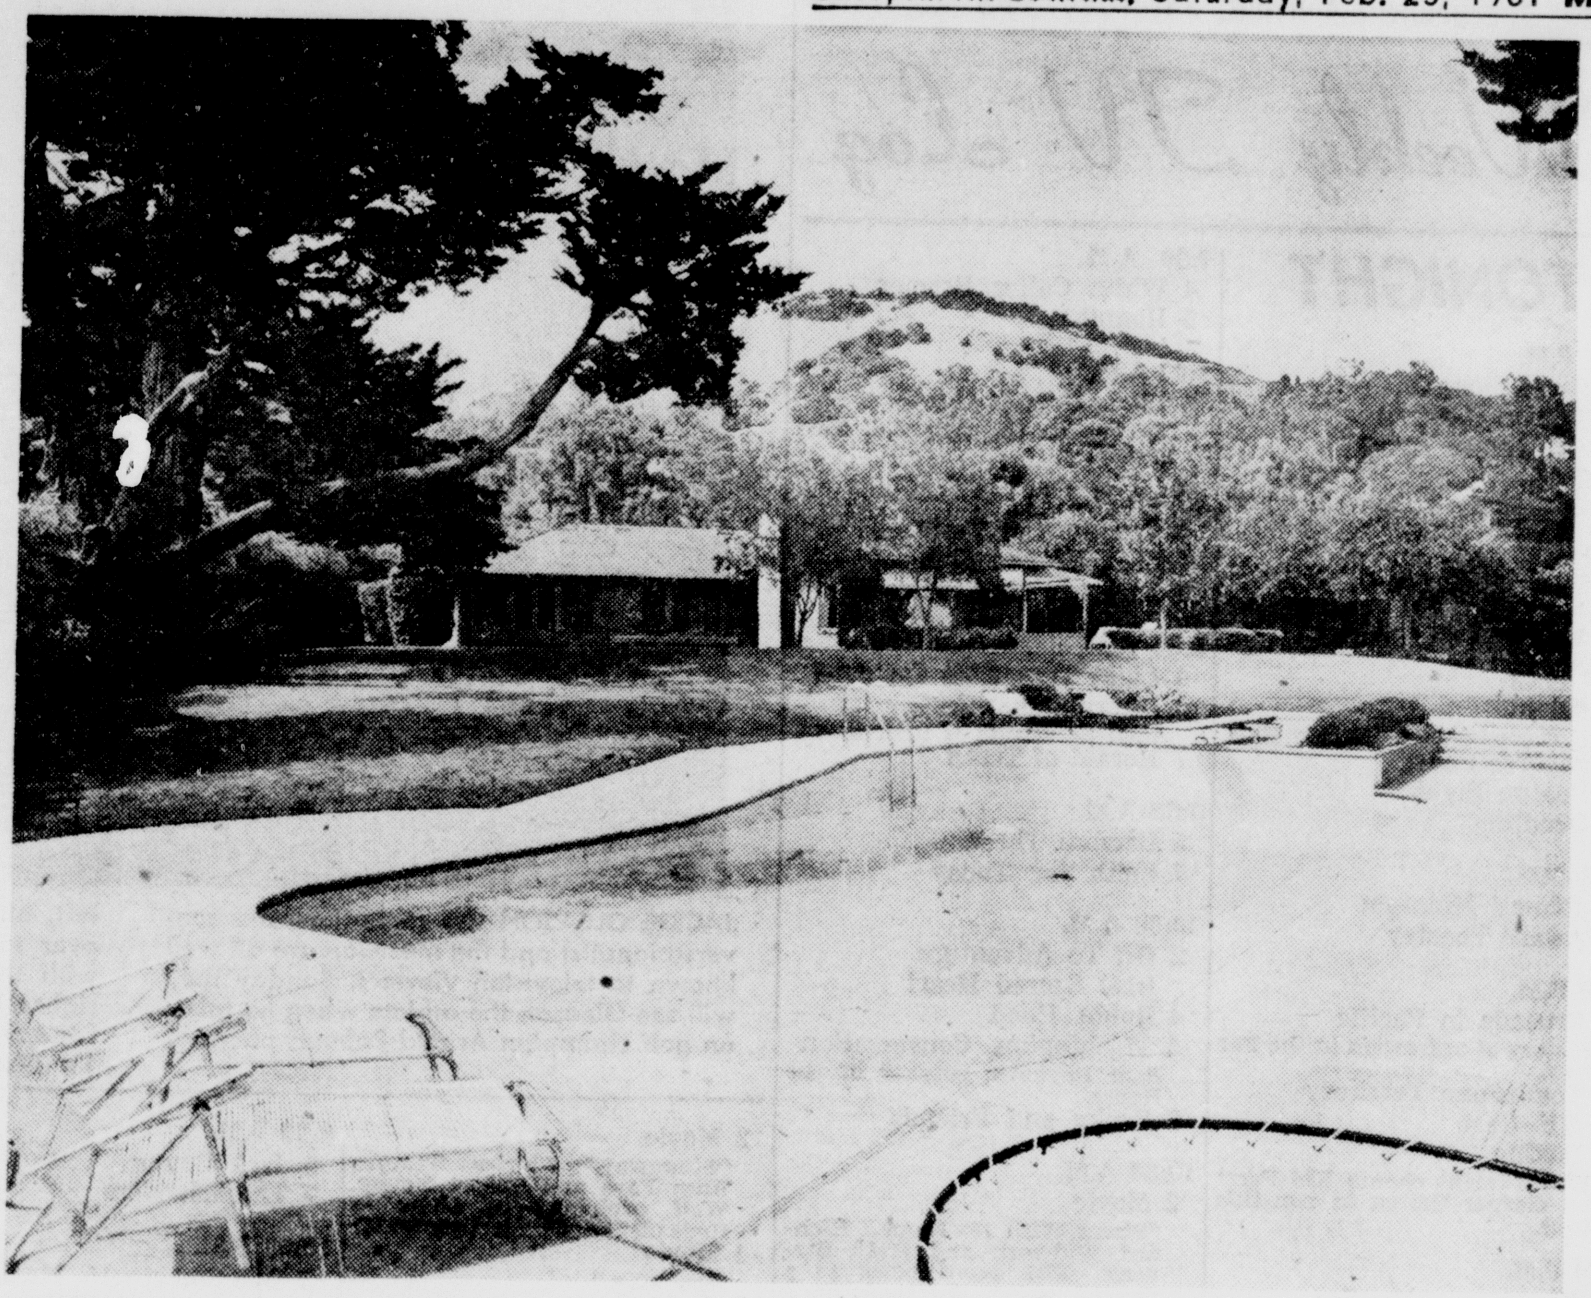
From the spindly, open growth of our species found in their native habitat, often attaining a height of 15 feet or more, specimens of compact growth of not more than three to five feet have been developed, providing an orientation at eye level, with much more brilliance of color and more luxurious foliage. There are also several varieties now that do not grow over a foot tall for border or foundation planting, ideal for the ranch style home.

COLOR HARMONY is another factor that is possible at this time. For instance, there is a good yellow variety that blends in well with a blue or purple, both blooming at approximately the same time. Many new varieties have been developed in the pastel shades, such as salmon-pink with orange shading, the colors of a ripe peach and the blend of colors found in our hybrid tea rose Talisman.

Variety Jade, with a tight upright truss in combination of pink, orange and eventually greenish-yellow, is one of our new American hybrids which grew to less than two feet in 10 years. Variety Cis, which received the Goodman Gold Cup Award for the best American hybrid shown at the Portland, Ore., show in 1951 and a preliminary award in 1954, has the unusual color combination with four-inch flowers of crimson-red to creamy-yellow, somewhat similar to our very popular hybrid tea rose Forty-Niner, the inside of the flower turning to deep cream, the outside remaining crimson-red. These two varieties are new, scarce and in short supply.

ANOTHER NEW variety, now available, is Anna Rose Whitney, a deep fluorescent rose-pink with excellent dark green foliage, larger truss and flower than Eureka Maid (Countess of Derby), or Pink Pearl and with deeper color than Eureka Maid. It blooms at an early age and is quite hardy. Trusses have measured 10 inches in diameter and 11 inches high. It is a cross of Countess of Derby and Griersonianum and a combination of brilliant geranium-scarlet and rose-pink.

The use of rhododendrons for home grounds beautification should not be under-estimated. Flowering evergreen shrubs will always be in the lead for year-round attractiveness, ease of maintenance, increase in the landscape property value.



A TWO-LEVEL POOL to fit the contour of the land was designed by William Kapranos, landscape architect, for the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leavitt Olds of 33 Moncada Way, San Rafael. There are steps on one side of the pool, but a ramp on the other so that a serving cart can be wheeled to the poolside. Simple spaciousness is the key to the design. Radiant heated pool and pool slab receive heat from a common boiler.

Television To Evaluate Kennedy Administration's First 40 Days

HOW HAS THE "New Frontier" fared during its first 40 days in office?

NBC-TV will attempt to answer that question Tuesday in a Purex Special one-hour telecast entitled "JFK . . . Report No. 1" that will be seen at 10 p.m. on KRON (Channel 4).

It will be divided into five segments, opening with some background narration and still photos telling how John F. Kennedy reached the presidency. Next will come film sequences of Kennedy outlining his programs. Four congressional leaders — Senator Hubert Humphrey and Rep. Sam Rayburn, Democrats, Senator Stiles Bridges and Rep. Charles Halleck, Republicans — will be questioned as to how the programs are faring.

David Brinkley, currently the darling of television news and public affairs fans, will discuss the cultural impact of the Kennedy family on Washington and the nation.

And, finally, NBC commentators will stage a roundtable discussion during which they will compare the first 40 days of the Kennedy administration with the corresponding periods of the Franklin Roosevelt, Harry Truman and Dwight Eisenhower regimes.

The very capable Frank McGee will narrate.

The title—". . . Report No. 1"—would seem to indicate that NBC plans additional periodic evaluations of the Kennedy administration in the future.

PRESIDENT KENNEDY
His impact evaluated

IN THE MEANTIME, over the weekend you'll want to watch:

The "Nation's Future" debate tonight at 9:30 on KRON between Congressman James Roosevelt and former American Legion national commander Martin McKneally on a topic which is now hot and is certain to get hotter. They'll argue the question, "Should Congressional Investigations of Loyalty Be Curbed," and what they have in mind, of course, is the very controversial House Un-American Activities Committee.

Also tonight, at 10:30 p.m. on KPIX (Channel 5), a new series on international adventure and intrigue entitled "The Third Man" and starring Michael Rennie. If it is half as good as the Joseph Cotten-Orson Welles movie of the same title, upon which it is apparently based, it will be well worth watching.

The Sunday, 4 p.m., appearance of Leonard Bernstein and his New York Philharmonic over KPIX will have a different twist as the maestro and his musicians will attempt to illustrate the difficulties of turning a stage production into a musical composition. For purposes of illustration, Sophocles' "Oedipus Rex" and Stravinsky's "Oedipus Rex" will be used. Top opera and dramatic stars will appear.

And also on Sunday: Rotund Jackie Gleason will demonstrate his athletic prowess on "Sports Spectacular," 2:30 p.m. on KPIX, when he first takes on golfer Arnold Palmer, then billiards great Willie Mosconi at their own games. "The Twentieth Century," always good but seemingly getting better and better, will analyze "France in Ferment" with emphasis on that troubled country's rebellious youth at 6:30 p.m. on KPIX. KTVU (Channel 2) will show the much publicized James Dean movie, "Rebel Without a Cause" at 7 p.m. and repeat it the following evening. And KGO's "Herb Caen Show" will offer a discussion of the problems of youth by a panel including Pat Boone at 2 p.m., and then, at night at 11, Channel 7 will repeat last Sunday's lively gabfest by a panel of non-conformists including Marinite Vincent Hallinan.

LATER IN THE WEEK:

KGO's "Expedition — California" will probe into the stories behind some of the colorful geographical names in this state Tuesday at 7 p.m.

On Thursday evening there will be a time conflict between two shows of special merit. KRON will carry a 90-minute NBC special starting a 9:30 celebrating Life Magazine's 25 years in its field with Fredric March and Bob Hope narrating, Sid Caesar and Peggy Cass appearing in a satirical sketch and the seven U.S. Project Mercury astronauts discussing their eagerness to participate in space exploration. At 10 p.m. the always excellent "CBS Reports" series will offer "A Real Case of Murder," a probe of the effectiveness of our system of justice, on KPIX.

Then on Friday a one-hour KRON medical special, "New Ear Drums," will include coverage of a delicate operation as performed in San Francisco's Children's Hospital.

HUNGARIAN-BORN pianist Istvan Nadas, now a Sausalito resident, will begin a new series of programs on KQED (Channel 9) Wednesday at 10 p.m. Nadas, a San Francisco Conservatory faculty member, will perform all 48 preludes and fugues from "The Well-Tempered Clavier" by Johann Sebastian Bach during the TV series. Marinites can also see him in person at a lecture-recital to be given next Thursday at Outdoor Club in Mill Valley at 8:30.

Bellach's

Strange salad, isn't it? But all the ingredients can be found at Bellach's, and with a little know-how (supplied by our decorator staff), even an amateur can concoct a salad a la mode for a price a la budget! Furnishing your home is really a personal matter because you want it to express your individual taste and provide the greatest selection of styles to make the particular arrangement you need to meet your individual requirements. Come in . . . look around . . . you'll be surprised to see how far your dollars will go and how much more gracious you can make your living.
